The Ungovernable Society Grégoire Chamayou, 2021-01-28 Rebellion was in the air Workers were on strike students were demonstrating on campuses discipline was breaking down No relation of domination was left untouched the relation between the sexes the racial order the hierarchies of class relationships in families workplaces and colleges The upheavals of the late 1960s and early 1970s quickly spread through all sectors of social and economic life threatening to make society ungovernable This crisis was also the birthplace of the authoritarian liberalism which continues to cast its shadow across the world in which we now live To ward off the threat new arts of government were devised by elites in business related circles which included a war against the trade unions the primacy of shareholder value and a dethroning of politics The neoliberalism that thus began its triumphal march was not however determined by a simple state phobia and a desire to free up the economy from government interference On the contrary the strategy for overcoming the crisis of governability consisted in an authoritarian liberalism in which the liberalization of society went hand in hand with new forms of power imposed from above a strong state for a free economy became the new magic formula of our capitalist societies The new arts of government devised by ruling elites are still with us today and we can understand their nature and lasting influence only by re-examining the history of the conflicts that brought them into being

Money and the Nation State Kevin Dowd, 2020-04-03 Monetary and banking problems in the world today arise not so much from the failure of specific policies as from more deep seated problems in institutional structures Individuals clearly make mistakes and legislatures make bad laws but the institutions from which decisions and laws emanate determine the effectiveness of social operations and the value of social decisions Unless we change the present institutional structure we are not likely to get stable solutions to today s most serious problems ongoing and often erratic inflation and serious banking instability Money and the Nation State examines the history of modern monetary and banking arrangements some of the major monetary and banking problems and options for meaningful reform The common theme of all the essays is that current arrangements result less from the accomplishments of great men than man made institutions that society has inherited central banks and the legal and regulatory frameworks that accompany them The contributors emphasize the impact of political interference on the workings of monetary and financial institutions Not surprisingly they find many problems arise because politically generated structures are inappropriate to the real needs of the individuals and groups they are meant to serve Money and the Nation State provides an essential framework for those willing to return to first principles in thinking about the role of monetary institutions in economic life Economists financial theorists and the interested citizen will find it stimulating reading

Fortress America Edward J. Blakely, Mary Gail Snyder, 1997-09-01 Gated communities are a new hot button in many North American cities From Boston to Los Angeles and from Miami to Toronto citizens are taking sides in the debate over whether any neighborhood should be walled and gated preventing intrusion or inspection by outsiders This debate has intensified since the hard cover edition of this book was published in 1997 Since then the number of gated communities has risen dramatically In fact new homes in over 40 percent of planned developments are gated n the West the South and southeastern parts of the United States Opposition to this phenomenon is growing too In the small and relatively homogenous town of Worcester Massachusetts a band of college students from Brown University and the University of Chicago picketed the Wexford Village in November of 1998 waving placards that read Gates Divide These students are symbolic of a much larger wave of citizens asking questions about the need for and the social values of gates that divide one portion of a community from another
