Northern Experience and the Myths of Canadian Culture Renée Hulan,2002 In Northern Experience and the Myths of Canadian Culture Ren e Hulan disputes the notion that the north is a source of distinct collective identity for Canadians Through a synthesis of critical historical and theoretical approaches to northern subjects in literary studies she challenges the epistemology used to support this idea By investigating mutually dependent categories of identity in literature that depicts northern peoples and places Hulan provides a descriptive account of representative genres in which the north figures as a central theme including autobiography adventure narrative ethnography fiction poetry and travel writing She considers each of these diverse genres in terms of the way it explains the cultural identity of a nation formed from the settlement of immigrant peoples on the lands of dispossessed indigenous peoples Reading against the background of contemporary ethnographic literary and cultural theory Hulan maintains that the collective Canadian identity idealized in many works representing the north does not occur naturally but is artificially constructed in terms of characteristics inflected by historically contingent ideas of gender and race such as self sufficiency independence and endurance and that these characteristics are evoked to justify the nationhood of the Canadian state Catalogue of books in the general library
