

S. M. SEYMOUR. Native law in South Africa. Second edition. (Cape Town and Johannesburg, 1960. Juta & Co. 305 pp. 85s. 6d.)

This is a second edition of a work which first appeared in 1953. There appear to have been no very substantial changes in content, though the work has been brought up to date and the arrangement of the material somewhat revised. It remains a most useful handbook for those interested in "the principles of uncodified Native civil law as practised in all the Provinces except Natal, and . . . the principles of the application of the Common Law of South Africa to Natives in civil matters". There is no Table of Cases.

F. P. ROUSSEAU. Handbook on the Group Areas Act. (Cape Town, Wynberg and Johannesburg, 1960. Juta & Co. xi, 124 pp. 45s.)

The Group Areas Act of 1957 is the cornerstone of apartheid. The Act defines three groups of persons, white, "native", and coloured. Sub-groups of the coloured group were also created. "The test in respect of membership of the white group is obvious appearance or, failing that, general acceptance as a member of that group." Since the Act provides for the social and residential segregation of the races, difficult legal problems arise where there has been intermarriage between groups, and also in the allocation of individuals to the necessarily imprecisely defined groups. "The mixed association problem is dealt with broadly on the basis that any white man who is a partner to a mixed marriage takes on the group classification of his wife. A woman who is married to or cohabits with a member of a different group takes on the group classification of her husband or paramour" (p. 15).

This appears to be a competent guide to a thoroughly undesirable law.

EDWARD CLEGG. Race and politics. Partnership in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. (London, 1960. O.U.P. x, 280 pp., map. 30s.)

This survey, which is primarily concerned with the historical evolution of the relations between the races in Northern Rhodesia, as expressed politically and constitutionally, contains a number of reflections on customary law, land tenure, and native courts, as they impinge on the main theme of the work.
