Making the Grade Martin V. Covington, 1992-04-24 Achievement behaviour in schools can best be understood in terms of attempts by students to maintain a positive self image For many students trying hard is frightening because a combination of effort and failure implies low ability which is often equated with worthlessness Thus many students described as unmotivated are in actuality highly motivated not to learn but to avoid failure Students have a variety of techniques for avoiding failure ranging from cheating to setting low goals which are easily achieved In Making the Grade Martin Covington extracts powerful educational implications from self worth theory and other contemporary views of motivation that will be useful for everyone concerned with the educational dilemmas we face He provides a comprehensive insightful review of research and theory both contemporary and historical on the topic of achievement motivation and arranges this knowledge in ways that lead to imminently practical recommendations for restructuring schools

Women and Depression Corey L. M. Keyes, Sherryl H. Goodman, 2006-01-23 Throughout the world rates of depression are greater among females than males and this gender gap emerges during adolescence and persists throughout adulthood Until recently women s health has centered on the topic of reproductive health because research focused almost exclusively on biological and anatomical differences distinguishing men and women Social and behavioral research on gender differences in health now employs multiple disciplinary frameworks and methodologies and researchers seek to understand the higher rates of specific diseases and disorders in women and men

Symptoms of depression and the diagnosis of depression are more prevalent in women and research that focuses on biological psychological and sociopolitical explanations for this gender gap should now be brought together to better inform efforts at treatment and prevention Women and Depression is a handbook that serves to move toward a more integrative approach to women s depression in particular and mental health for all more generally Subject Guide to Books in Print,1991
