Table 1 indicates that the Minneapolis-St. Paul Metropolitan Area has experienced a significant increase in the number of large shippers, joined by the entry of three large shippers from the South of St. Louis. It is interesting to note that the authors of the growing list of shippers are those firms that only once moved, and made a subsequent founding and growth in number of shippers and jobs that the South and St. Louis shippers. It may be that the Minneapolis-St. Paul Metropolitan Area has experienced a significant increase in the number of shippers and jobs since 1970, perhaps being especially true in the case of the St. Louis metropolitan area.

Luca Signorelli The Complete Paintings:

Luca Signorelli Tom Henry, Laurence B. Kanter, 2002 Giorgio Vasari remarked that Luca Signorelli was as famous a painter in Italy as any one has ever been Mentored by Piero della Francesca he developed a unique style which was characterized by violent and torturous movement of the figures and complex iconography In this continuation of our successful Renaissance painters series Signorelli experts Tom Henry and Laurence Kanter offer a thorough consideration of the artist's entire body of painting in the first comprehensive treatment of his work Luca Signorelli, 1899

Greenstein,1992-06 In this study Jack M Greenstein draws on Early Renaissance art theory modern narratology translation studies critical theory the philosophy of history and biblical hermeneutics to explicate the sense and significance of one of Andrea Mantegna's most enigmatic and influential works the Uffizi Circumcision of Christ. Faced with a work that resists established methods of iconographical analysis Greenstein reassesses the nature and goals of high humanist narrative painting. The result is a new historically grounded theory of iconography that calls into question many widely held assumptions about the social and intellectual value of Early Renaissance art. Greenstein's theory rests on a careful analysis of Leon Battista Alberti's commentary On Painting which equated both the form and the content of artistically composed painting with historia. Situating this equation within a centuries-old discourse on the multivalent significance of the Bible Greenstein shows that for Alberti historia was a mode of artistic narrative common to literature and painting in which moral truths were presented to the corporeal senses particularly to vision in the guise of plausible human actions. In Greenstein's reading the painter's primary task was the construction of a visually plausible narrative that effectively conveyed the higher meanings of historia. Having thus delineated the structure of significance in Albertian painting Greenstein shows what was at stake when a painter of Mantegna's historical bent undertook to produce a historia. As one of the leading historical thinkers of his age Mantegna imbued his depicted scenes with the plausibility of historical events by employing those codes of evidence causality and historical distance that underlay the Renaissance sense of the past. But the Circumcision of Christ resisted such treatment because the symbolic conventions developed by earlier artists for conveying the higher theological meanings of the theme were incompatible with the representational fidelity embraced by painters of historia. Mantegna overcame these difficulties by arriving at a new understanding of the Circumcision which remained faithful to the narrative structure as well as the theological content of the biblical account. His interpretation was widely adopted by later artists but was so pictorial in nature that despite its consistency with the biblical account it remained without parallel in theological literature. Greenstein's discovery that artistic production of Albertian painting was a specialized and singularly visual form of thinking whose roots lay more in readerly hermeneutics than in perception commerce or common visual experience raises questions about narrative representation and the textuality of art that will interest a wide array of scholars.

The Body in Early Modern Italy Julia L. Hairston, Walter Stephens, 2010-04

Human bodies have been represented and defined in various ways across different cultures and historical periods. As an object of interpretation and site of social interaction the body has throughout history attracted more attention than perhaps any other element of human experience. The essays in this volume explore the manifestations of the body in Italian society from the fourteenth through the seventeenth centuries. Adopting a variety of interdisciplinary approaches these fresh and thought-provoking essays offer original perspectives on corporeality as understood in the early modern literature art architecture science and politics of Italy. An impressively diverse group of contributors comment on a broad range and variety of conceptualizations of the body creating a rich dialogue among scholars of early modern Italy.
