This book documents in real time the implementation of a major government numeracy programme and its receipt by trainee and new teachers. It documents the complete life span of that initiative. The account is targeted at an international readership in terms of how curriculum reform more generally shapes mathematics in schools and the practices of teachers. A key dimension of the book is an alternative view of mathematics education research in which the task of teacher development is understood at policy level where large numbers of teachers were interviewed to assess how policies were being processed through individuals. The book provides an easy and accessible commentary utilising contemporary theory to describe how such teachers reconcile their personal aspirations with the external demands they encounter in negotiating their identities as professional teachers Calendar University of Cape Town, 1923 The Education Gazette of the Province of the Cape of Good Hope Cape of Good Hope (South Africa). Education Department, 1926 Affect and Mathematics Education Markku S. Hannula, Gilah C. Following an introduction and a survey chapter providing a concise overview of the state of art in the field of mathematics related affect the book is divided into three main sections motivation and values engagement and identity in mathematics education Each section comprises several independent chapters based on original research as well as a reflective commentary by an expert in the area Collectively the chapters present a rich methodological spectrum from narrative analysis to structural equation modelling In the final chapter the editors look ahead to future directions in the area of mathematics education related affect It is a timely resource for all those interested in the interaction between affect and mathematics education Australian National

Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia,1988 Mathematical Subjects Fiona Walls,2009-08-10 Teaching and learning mathematics is a political act in which children teachers parents and policy makers are made visible as subjects As they learn about mathematics children are also learning about themselves who they are who they might become We can choose to listen or not to what children have to say about learning mathematics Such choices constitute us in relations of power Mathematical know how is widely regarded as essential not only to the life chances of individuals but also to the health of communities and the economic well being of nations With the globalisation of education in an increasingly market oriented world mathematics has received intensified attention in the first decade of the twenty first century with a shifting emphasis on utilitarian aspects of mathematics This is reflected in the reconceptualisation of mathematical competence as mathematical literacy loosely conceived as those ways of thinking reasoning and working mathematically that allow us to engage effectively in everyday situations in many occupations and the cut and thrust of world economies as active empowered and participatory citizens It is no surprise then that mathematics has become one of the most politically charged subjects in primary school curricula worldwide We are experiencing an unprecedented proliferation of regional and national strategies to establish benchmarks raise standards enhance achievement close gaps and leave no child behind in mathematics education Industries have sprung up around the design administration and monitoring of standardised assessment to measure and compare children s mathematical achievement against identified benchmarks and each other into a whole school culture      More Trouble with Maths Steve Chinn, 2016-07-21 More Trouble with Maths acknowledges that there are many reasons why children and adults are unable to function mathematically. Difficulties include problems with rote learning, basic facts and procedures, debilitating anxiety, poor working and short-term memories, and mathematics vocabulary. Central to this new edition is a range of standardised tests and diagnostic activities, including a 15-minute test of basic mathematics, a thinking style test, tests of basic fact retrieval, and maths anxiety. Guiding the reader in the interpretation of tests, this new edition shows how identifying the barriers to learning is the first step in a programme of intervention. Written in an engaging and user-friendly style, Steve Chinn draws on his extensive experience and expertise to show how to consider and appraise the many factors relating to mathematical learning difficulties, explain how these factors can be investigated, explore their impact on learning mathematics, emphasising the need for a clinical approach when assessing individuals. This book shows how diagnosis and assessment can become integrated into everyday teaching. This highly practical and relevant resource is a crucial resource for anyone who wants to accurately and effectively identify the depth and nature of mathematical learning difficulties and dyscalculia.
