How War Began Keith F. Otterbein,2004 Have humans always fought and killed each other or did they peacefully coexist until organized states developed Is war an expression of human nature or an artifact of civilization Questions about the origins and inherent motivations of warfare have long engaged philosophers ethicists and anthropologists as they speculate on the nature of human existence In How War Began author Keith F Otterbein draws on primate behavior research archaeological research and data gathered from the Human Relations Area Files to argue for two separate origins He identifies two types of military organization one that developed two million years ago at the dawn of humankind wherever groups of hunters met and a second that developed some five thousand years ago in four identifiable regions when the first states arose and proceeded to embark upon military conquests In careful detail Otterbein marshals evidence for his case that warfare was possible and likely among early Homo sapiens He argues from comparison with other primates from Paleolithic rock art depicting wounded humans and from rare skeletal remains embedded with weapon points to conclude that warfare existed and reached a peak in big game hunting societies As the big game disappeared so did warfare only to reemerge once agricultural societies achieved a degree of political complexity that allowed the development of professional military organizations Otterbein concludes his survey with an analysis of how despotism in both ancient and modern states spawns warfare A definitive resource for anthropologists social scientists and historians How War Began is written for all who are interested in warfare whether they be military buffs or those seeking to understand the past and the present of humankind Publisher     Effects of War on Society Giorgio Ausenda, 2002 The conference Effects of War on Society was the first in a series aimed at placing in perspective the sociocultural variables that make outbreaks of war probable and identifying for policy makers steps that can be taken to control these variables The papers focus on analysis of historical thinking on war anthropological analysis of the effects of war on societies at different levels of sociocultural integration the expansion and decline of multi ethnic states and the wider effects of war political economic and moral Copyright Libri GmbH All rights reserved
