faces of the homeless but real people While it is estimated that 25 percent or more of America s homeless are mentally ill their lives are largely unknown to us What must life be like for those who in addition to living on the street hear voices suffer paranoid delusions or have trouble thinking clearly or talking to others Shelter Blues is an innovative portrait of people residing in Boston s Station Street Shelter It examines the everyday lives of more than 40 homeless men and women both white and African American ranging in age from early 20s to mid 60s Based on a sixteen month study it draws readers into the personal worlds of these individuals and by addressing the intimacies of homelessness illness and abjection picks up where most scholarship and journalism stops Robert Desjarlais works against the grain of media representations of homelessness by showing us not anonymous stereotypes but individuals He draws on conversations as well as observations talking with and listening to shelter residents to understand how they relate to their environment to one another and to those entrusted with their care His book considers their lives in terms of a complex range of forces and helps us comprehend the linkages between culture illness personhood and political agency on the margins of contemporary American society Shelter Blues is unlike anything else ever written about homelessness It challenges social scientists and mental health professionals to rethink their approaches to human subjectivity and helps us all to better understand one of the most pressing problems of our time

Alliance Rises in the West Charlotte K. Sunseri, 2020-12 Alliance Rises in the West documents the experiences of a company town at a critical moment in the rise of working class consciousness in nineteenth century California Through archaeological research Charlotte K Sunseri overcomes the silence of the documentary record to re examine the mining frontier at Mono Mills a community of multiple ethnic and racial groups predominantly Chinese immigrants and Kudzadika Paiutes The rise of political economic and social alliances among workers symbolized solidarity and provided opportunity to effect change in this setting of unequal power Urban planning and neighborhood layout depict company structures of control and surveillance while household archaeology from ethnically distinct neighborhoods speaks to lived experiences and how working class identities emerged to crosscut ethnic and racial divides imposed in capitalism Mono Mills s Paiute and Chinese communities experienced exclusionary legislation and brutal treatment on the basis of racial prejudice but lived alongside and built community with European American laborers managers and merchants who were also on an economic periphery These experiences in Mono Mills and other nineteenth century company towns did not occur in a vacuum capitalists control and ideologies of race and class all doubled down as American workers used collective action to change the rules of the system In this rare in depth perspective close consideration of the ghost towns that dot the landscape of the West shows the haunting elements of capitalism and racial structures that characterized Gilded Age society and whose legacies endure to this day

Telling Environmental Histories Katie Holmes, Heather Goodall, 2017-12-12 This collection explores the intersections of oral history and environmental history Oral history offers environmental historians the opportunity to understand the ways people s perceptions experiences and beliefs about environments change over time In turn the insights of environmental history challenge oral historians to think more critically about the ways an active more than human world shapes experiences and people The integration of these approaches enables us to more fully and critically understand the ways cultural and individual memory and experience shapes human interactions with the more than human world just as it enables us to identify the ways human memory identity and experience is moulded by the landscapes and environments in which people live and labour It includes contributions from Australia India the UK Canada and the USA Reckoning with Change in Yucatán Jason Ramsey, 2023-11-30 Reckoning with Change in Yucatán engages with how best to look upon and respond to change arguing that this debate is an important arena for negotiating local belonging and a force of transformation in its own right For residents of Chunchucmil a historic rural community in Yucatán Mexico history is anything but straightforward Living in what is both a defunct 19th century hacienda estate and a vibrant Catholic pilgrimage site Chunchucmil os reckon past present and future in radically different ways For example while some use the aging estate buildings to weave a history of economic decline and push for revitalization by hotel developers others highlight the growing fame of the Virgin of the Rosary in the attached church and vow to defend the site from developer interference By exploring how past and future are channeled through changing built environments landscapes sacred relics and legal documents this ethnographic study details how the politics of change provide Chunchucmil os with a common language for debating commitments to place and each another in the present Against Western notions of History as a relatively coherent account of change the book suggests we reframe it as an ongoing performance that is always fractured democratic and morally tinged
