Resilience In Children Families And Communities Linking Context To Practice And Policy:

Resilience in Children, Families, and Communities Ray D. Peters, Bonnie Leadbeater, Robert J. McMahon, 2004-12-16

Despite the numerous benefits derived from major technological and medical innovations of the past century we continue to live in a world rife with significant social problems and challenges Children continue to be born into lives of poverty others must confront daily their parent s mental illness or substance abuse still others live amid chronic family discord or child abuse For some of these children life s difficulties become overwhelming Their enduring trauma can lead to a downward spiral until their behavioral and emotional problems become lifelong barriers to success and wellbeing Almost no one today would deny that the world is sometimes an inhospitable even dangerous place for our youth Yet most children even those living in high risk environments appear to persevere Some even flourish And this begs the question why in the face of such great odds do these children become survivors rather than casualties of their environments For many decades scholars have pursued answers to the mysteries of resilience Now having culled several decades of research findings the editors of this volume offer an in depth leading edge description and analysis of Resilience in Children Families and Communities Linking Context to Practice and Policy The book is divided into three readily accessible sections that both define the scope and limits of resilience as well as provide hands on programs that families neighborhoods and communities can implement In addition several chapters provide real life intervention strategies and social policies that can be readily put into practice The goal to enable children to develop more effective problem solving skills to help each child to improve his or her self image and to define ways in which role models can affect positive outcomes throughout each child s lifetime For researchers clinicians and students Resilience in Children Families and Communities Linking Context to Practice and Policy is an essential addition to their library It provides practical information to inform greater success in the effort to encourage resilience in all children and to achieve positive youth development

Resilience in Action Michael Ungar, Linda Liebenberg, 2008-01-01 Mental health specialists and researchers contend that the development of resilience in youth is facilitated at several levels Relational cultural individual and governmental factors all have a strong influence over the mental well being of young people Resilience in Action looks at youth interventions with a view to fostering resilience in those living in adverse situations and conditions In order to provide a practical approach to the issue the essays in this volume explore the components of successful interventions encouraging the transmission of effective practices from one community to another across borders It is organized into four sections each dealing with a different aspect of work with at risk youth The first section focuses on individual health and the ways in which intervention and therapy strengthen personal resources The second section explores the dynamics of interventions in relation to specific contexts and localized relationships emphasizing holistic approaches to youth work A review of the cultural relevance of resilience follows in section three and the fourth considers ways of increasing the accessibility to resources that encourage healthy development Featuring contributors from a variety of academic and cultural backgrounds Resilience in Action offers diverse answers to many of the persistent questions mental health professionals ask regarding how to enhance resilience Handbook of Adult Resilience John W. Family Life in Adolescence Patricia Noller, Sharon Atkin, 2014-01-01 Many parents fear the time when their beautiful happy children will become unmanageable adolescents continually engaging in risky or destructive behaviour Unfortunately this view of adolescents is the focus of the media even though it relates to just a small proportion of young people As the large amount of research we report shows most adolescents are responsible young people who care about their families and crave the support of their parents It is also true however as much research indicates that the quality of the relationship parents have with their adolescents is crucial to the wellbeing of those young people We discuss the need for parents to set reasonable limits on their adolescents and to expect appropriate behavior We also show on the basis of research that children who have experienced positive caring relationships with their parents are more likely than other adolescents to behave responsibly In other words behavior in adolescence does not come out of nowhere but builds on earlier experiences in the family Because of the large amount of research reported in this volume we expect that it will be useful to practitioners from a range of professions that are likely to focus on adolescents social workers youth leaders welfare workers religious leaders psychologists and psychiatrists and contribute to a better understanding of young people and their development and the importance of families to that development
