Divine Sovereignty and Human Responsibility D. A. Carson, 2002-01-07 Both theology and philosophy wrestle with the tension that exists between the sovereignty of God and human response In Christianity this tension is particularly acute as God is understood to be both omnipotent and benevolent This tension underlies numerous other questions about the nature of God the meaning of human freedom and choice the concept of divine repentance the reign of God and supremely the significance of the incarnation Dr Carson brings clear scholarly insights and finely honed exegetical skills to this all pervasive issue seeing it not so much as a problem to be solved as a framework to be explored He examines the sovereignty responsibility themes in the Old Testament intertestamental literature and in the theology of John's gospel and concludes with a reflection on the theological implications for ministry and mission today

Forgiveness and Restorative Justice Myra N. Blyth, Matthew J. Mills, Michael H. Taylor, 2021-06-17 The meaning of forgiveness and its role within restorative justice are highly contested This book offers analysis from practical and academic perspectives within Christian theology against a rich canvas of related concepts including victimhood sin love and vulnerability Critical friends of restorative justice the authors argue that forgiveness whether as journey or act unilateral or mutual conditional or unconditional is necessary to achieving a fully restorative resolution to acts of harm They also suggest that Christianity with its meaning giving metanarrative of restoration and preference for communitarian approaches to justice may have epistemic value for evaluating and even deepening the theory and practice of restorative justice

Inherited Responsibility and Historical Reconciliation in East Asia Chun-hyök Kwak, Melissa Nobles, 2013 Contemporary East Asian societies are still struggling with complex legacies of colonialism war and domination Years of Japanese imperial occupation followed by the Cold War have entrenched competing historical understandings of responsibility for past crimes in Korea China Japan and elsewhere in the region In this context even the impressive economic and cultural networks that have developed over the past sixty years have failed to secure peaceful coexistence and overcome lingering attitudes of distrust and misunderstanding in the region This book examines the challenges of historical reconciliation in East Asia and in doing so calls for a reimagining of how we understand both historical identity and responsibility It suggests that by adopting a forward looking approach that eschews obsession with the past in favour of a reflective and deliberative engagement with history real progress can be made towards peaceful coexistence in East Asia With chapters that focus on select experiences from East Asia while simultaneously situating them within a wider comparative perspective the contributors to this volume focus on the close relationship between reconciliation and inherited responsibility and reveal the contested nature of both concepts Finally this volume suggests that historical reconciliation is essential for strengthening mutual trust between the states and people of East Asia and suggests ways in which such divisive legacies of conflict can be overcome Providing both an overview of the theoretical arguments surrounding reconciliation and inherited responsibility alongside examples of these concepts from across East Asia this book will be valuable to students and scholars interested in Asian politics Asian history and international relations more broadly

Bonhoeffer and the Responsibility for a Coming Generation Robert Vosloo, Teddy Sakupapa, Karola Radler, Ashwin Thyssen, 2024-07-25 This volume draws together a selection of high quality presentations at the 13th International Bonhoeffer Congress held in January 2020 in Stellenbosch South Africa The theme of the conference was How a coming generation is to go on living Bonhoeffer and the response to our present crisis and hope The selected essays engage thoroughly and creatively with this concern to take responsibility not only for our own personal and communal life in all of its complexity and richness but also for the ethos and society that future generations will inherit from us The pertinence of Bonhoeffer's question is addressed in these contributions anew as we experience threats on a global level to socio political economic and inter religious stability and solidarity Attention is also given to some important challenges experienced in the so called global South and the reality of climate change and ecological devastation implies that the question of how future generations are going to go on living is linked to the fact that we live on a planet that is in jeopardy Also included as an appendix is the powerful sermon preached by the South African Anglican archbishop of Cape Town Thabo Makgoba at the opening worship service of the congress
