Rethinking Energy Security in Asia: A Non-Traditional View of Human Security Mely Caballero-Anthony,Youngho Chang,Nur Azha Putra,2012-06-07 Traditional notions of security are premised on the primacy of state security In relation to energy security traditional policy thinking has focused on ensuring supply without much emphasis on socioeconomic and environmental impacts Non traditional security NTS scholars argue that threats to human security have become increasingly prominent since the end of the Cold War and that it is thus critical to adopt a holistic and multidisciplinary approach in addressing rising energy needs This volume represents the perspectives of scholars from across Asia looking at diverse aspects of energy security through a non traditional security lens The issues covered include environmental and socioeconomic impacts the role of the market the role of civil society energy sustainability and policy trends in the ASEAN region

Energy Policy and Regulation in the People's Republic of China C. P. Andrews-Speed,2004-01-01 China is the world s second largest consumer of commercial energy and is therefore a significant contributor to atmospheric pollution It is becoming a major player in global and regional markets for energy products services and investment This book provides an overview of the formulation and implementation of energy policy in China Part One provides background information on China s energy sector Part Two examines the nature of China s energy policy and of the policy making process with examples drawn from the coal and natural gas sectors as well as from the government s drive to promote energy conservation and energy efficiency Part Three focuses on recent efforts to reform the energy sector in China and to regulate it more effectively paying particular attention to the electrical power sector and to small scale coal mines Part Four evaluates from the perspective of the citizen policy relating to the electrical power sector and to the closure of small scale coal mines Part Five addresses the international dimensions of China s energy policy with accounts of both inward and outward investment and of the international political implications About the author Dr Philip Andrews Speed is Director of the Centre for Energy Petroleum and Mineral Law and Policy at the University of Dundee Scotland He spent fourteen years as a geologist in the international mining and petroleum industries before coming to the Centre in 1994 gaining an LLM in Energy Law and Policy and joining the academic staff

Energy Security Cooperation in Northeast Asia Bo Kong,Jae Ku,2015-04-24 Drawing on cutting edge research from leading scholars this book investigates state preferences for regime creation and assesses state capacity for executing these preferences in Northeast Asia s energy domain defined as the geographical area comprising the following countries Russia Mongolia China Japan

South Korea and North Korea It examines questions pertaining to how states perceive the need and necessity for establishing a regime when it comes to the issue of energy and how much commitment they make to the effort in Northeast Asia The book analyses the factors that shape each country's fundamental energy interests in the region how these interests impact their attitudes toward engaging the region on energy security and the way they carry out their regional engagement Based on countries' interests in promoting institutionalized regional energy cooperation and their capacity for forging that cooperation the collection assesses each state's role in contributing to an energy regime in Northeast Asia It then concludes with a critique on the decade plus quest for energy security cooperation in Northeast Asia and suggests ways forward for facilitating regional energy security cooperation This book will be of great interest to scholars and students of environmental policy energy policy security studies Asian studies and international relations

Energy, Wealth and Governance in the Caucasus and Central Asia Richard Auty, Indra de Soysa, 2006-08-21 Drawing upon recent progress in development economics and political science the book provides fresh analysis of the Caucasus and Central Asia CCA countries' transition to a market economy by tracing the impact of natural resource endowment The book examines the synergies between energy rich and energy poor states and highlights the practical consequences of both well managed and poorly managed deployment of energy Featuring contributions from prominent specialists on resource driven economies the book argues that unless CCA elites change the way in which they deploy natural resource revenues regional development will fall short of its potential with possible disastrous consequences The contributors apply the experience of the developing market economies to demonstrate that the region still holds considerable potential to become an important stable supplier of raw materials and a source of industrial demand to the global economy However the CCA is equally likely to become a threat to the global economy as a consequence of the misuse of energy revenues to promote the interests of predatory political elites

Energy and Non-Traditional Security (NTS) in Asia Mely Caballero-Anthony, Youngho Chang, Nur Azha Putra, 2012-06-07 Traditional notions of security are premised on the primacy of state security In relation to energy security traditional policy thinking has focused on ensuring supply without much emphasis on socioeconomic and environmental impacts Non traditional security NTS scholars argue that threats to human security have become increasingly prominent since the end of the Cold War and that it is thus critical to adopt a holistic and multidisciplinary approach in addressing rising energy needs This volume represents the perspectives of scholars from across Asia looking at diverse aspects of energy security through a non traditional security lens The issues covered include environmental and socioeconomic impacts the role of the market the role of civil society energy sustainability and policy trends in the ASEAN region

Energy Security in Japan Vlado Vivoda, 2016-04-29 For a country

already uneasy about energy security the 2011 earthquake and tsunami which caused a nuclear catastrophe at the Fukushima nuclear power plant turned pre existing Japanese concern about the availability of energy into outright anxiety The subsequent closure of many nuclear reactors meant Japan needed to replace lost power quickly and so had no choice but to secure additional fossil fuels undermining Japanese diversification policy and increasing global and regional competition for energy This switch has been at a cost to the already weak Japanese economy whilst the increase in fossil fuel consumption has caused a significant increase in greenhouse gas emissions In this book Vlado Vivoda examines the drastically changed environment following the disaster in order to analyse Japan s energy security challenges and evaluate Tokyo s energy policy options Looking at how the disaster exacerbated Japan s existing energy security challenges Vivoda considers the best policy options for Japan to enhance national energy security in the future exploring the main impediments to change and how they might be overcome
