Rethinking Urban Transport After Modernism Lessons From South Africa Transport And Mobility Series:

Rethinking Urban Transport After Modernism David Dewar, Fabio Todeschini, 2017-07-05 Taking South Africa as a case study this book puts forward an innovative holistic view of urban movement and transportation It argues that movement is not an end in itself but simply one element of urban public structure Its key issue therefore is not how to improve transportation but how transportation can best be used to improve overall urban performance A Mobile Century? Colin G. Pooley, Jean Turnbull, Mags Adams, 2017-03-02 For most people in the developed world the ability to travel freely on a daily basis is almost taken for granted Although there is a large volume of literature on contemporary mobility and associated transport problems there are no comprehensive studies of the ways in which these trends have changed over time This book provides a detailed empirical analysis of mobility change in Britain over the twentieth century Beginning with an explanatory theoretical overview setting the UK case studies within an international context the book then analyses changes in the journey to school the journey to work and travelling for pleasure It also looks at the ways in which changes in mobility have interacted with changes in the family life cycle and assesses the impact of new transport technologies on everyday mobility It concludes by examining the implications of past mobility change for contemporary transport policy Achieving Sustainable Mobility Erling Holden, 2016-03-16 Sustainable mobility has become the new imperative for transport policy There have been a number of policy attempts at sustainable mobility globally such as the development of more efficient conventional transport technologies the promotion of efficient and affordable public transport systems and the encouragement of environmental awareness Such policies have so often been presented as prerequisites for sustainable mobility that they are now taken for granted But are any of these policies really successful To what extent do they actually contribute or fail to contribute to sustainable mobility Why do some policies succeed and others fail Using an interdisciplinary approach which brings together various theories and methodologies this book tests each of these policies or hypotheses as the author sees them with detailed empirical investigations It also argues that leisure time travel should be included in any sustainable mobility policies as it now accounts for 50 per cent of all annual travel distance in developed countries The book concludes by suggesting fourteen theses of sustainable mobility for the EU and a new model for future best practice The City as a Terminal Markus Hesse, 2016-03-16 The on time delivery of goods is regarded as a primary factor of the urban economy and is being monitored by businesses and government alike However much analysis of freight transportation and the flow of goods into out of and within urban areas focuses on functional business related approaches This book examines the interrelationship between logistics development on one hand and urban development and geographical issues such as land use and location on the other Avoiding certain one dimensional views on logistics impacts on the city it discloses the complex interaction of the logistics system with the entire urban environment It also bridges the gap between recent geographical research into new production systems and post modern consumption patterns Illustrated with case studies from the United States Germany

France The Netherlands and the United Kingdom it examines issues such as the historical nexus between urban areas and logistics current urban developments with regards to goods distribution city region related characteristics of freight flows locational dynamics and specific freight related urban problems and conflicts Ports, Cities, and Global Supply Chains explores the relationship between mobility patterns transport provision and urban development in East African cities Bringing together contributions on the futures of mobility in urban East Africa the chapters examine transport provision mobility patterns location specific modes of transport and transformative factors for transport and mobility in the rapidly urbanising region The book outlines different mobility needs to be addressed in transport planning to serve and shape the respective cities and examines the decision making process in transport planning and the level of accountability to the public The contributors show the dialectic between innovation in transport mobility and urban development under rapid urbanisation and discusses how to practically integrate mobility and transport provision into urban development This book will be of interest to scholars in urban planning transport planning transport geography social sciences and African studies

Transport and Mobility Futures in Urban Africa Ransford A. Acheampong, Karen Lucas, Michael Poku-Boansi, Chinebuli Uzundu, 2022-11-02 This book provides a collection of insightful conceptual and empirical works that situate transport and mobility challenges in the unique context of individual countries and cities while highlighting commonalities across the African continent Written from an interdisciplinary perspective the book covers important themes in transport and mobility including the links between urbanization urban structure and accessibility transport equity and poverty non motorized transport public transport and the challenges and opportunities of new and emerging transport technologies and ICT

mediated mobility solutions Each chapter engages with the normative imperatives that are critical to improving the transport and mobility situations of African urban areas now and in the future A New Perspective Sara Candiracci,Christian Schlösser,Heather Allen,Yvonne Kunz,2010 Transforming Urban Transport Nicholas Low,2012-12-12 Transforming Urban Transport confronts head on the dilemma faced by a world wedded to mobility the danger of continuing along the fossil fuelled path and the real paucity of viable technological alternatives which can be deployed in time To respond to the dilemma the ideal of urban transport must be changed from auto based mobility to systems of sustainable transport in which public transport and non motorised transport work together to reduce climate change pressures enhance urban quality and preserve life and health The book challenges the commonly held view that a combination of urbanity and higher residential density expressed in compact cities expected to have greater public transport use will resolve urban transport environment problems instead showing that transport systems can be changed to meet the environmental imperatives without the massive spatial change implied But the problem of change of urban transport is profoundly institutional and cultural Changes in urban mobility and transport require local institutional policy action To support such action the book explores new methods of governance of transport in dispersed and concentrated cities new techniques for assessing transport need ways of improving childhood mobility guidelines for political mobilization and norms of knowledge sharing Drawing together leading scholars from different disciplines in Australia Japan and China this book provides a unique fusion of Asian and Australasian perspectives and engages with the coming needs of transport planning practitioners in both high density and dispersed cities

Gleeson,2002-11-30 Making Urban Transport Sustainable addresses the future of urban transport as a global issue Money is being poured into roads railways and airports at a time when the global atmosphere is threatened and oil production has reached its peak If the world s environment and societies are to be sustained urban transport has to change Contributions by experts from the developed and developing world discuss the severity of the problem and suggest potential solutions Non-Motorized Transport Integration into Urban Transport Planning in Africa Winnie V. Mitullah,Marianne Vanderschuren,Melekidzedek Khayesi,2017-07-14 What challenges do pedestrians and cyclists face in cities of the developing world What opportunities do these cities have to provide for walking and cycling Based on in depth research conducted in Cape Town South Africa Dar es Salaam Tanzania and Nairobi Kenya this book explores these questions by presenting work on walking and cycling travel behaviour the status of road safety in these cities as well as an analysis of the infrastructure for walking and cycling and the workings of the institutions responsible for planning for these modes The book also presents case studies relating to particular opportunities and challenges such as the development and evaluation of walking bus interventions and the opportunities micro simulation of pedestrian interventions offers within a data scarce environment Non motorized Transport Integration into Urban Transport Planning in Africa demonstrates that transport and urban planning remains situated in a logic of automobile dependent transport planning and global city development This logic of practice does not pay adequate attention to walking and cycling It argues that a significant shift in both policy as well as political commitment is needed so as to prioritize walking and cycling as strategies for sustainable transport policy in urban Africa This book will be a key text for practitioners and policy makers working in planning transport policy and urban development in Africa as well as students and scholars of African studies development studies urban geography transport studies and sustainable development      Urban Transport XIX C.
