Rethinking Elders:

Rethinking Elders Gene Edwards, 1998-03-01

Rethinking Justice in Catholic Social Thought Daniel K.

Finn, 2025 Catholics traditionally have relied on the definition of justice supplied by Thomas Aquinas. Yet developments in human history complicate this medieval conception of justice. Take but two examples. We now live in democracies where citizens elect their leaders and so bear the responsibilities of distributive justice once assigned only to kings and princes. And the growing interest in restorative justice means that one on one injustices require the involvement of a larger community for long term healing. Add other developments: secularism, the growth of Christianity in the Global South, economic change, the impact of social scientific insights and a host of widely acknowledged obligations related to the environment, social media, privacy, religious freedom, gender, racism, harassment, transparency etc. Together they require new ways of thinking about justice in Catholic social thought. This book draws on a number of traditions from Africa, Hindu and Buddhist understandings of justice to Latin American theological and Scriptural readings of justice to develop a new concept for our times. The result is a definition of justice as a lived experience of communal life characterized by the freedom and equal dignity of all people and by equitable relationships of exchange and access to the common goods of the community.

Rethinking Agency Sumi

Madhok, 2014-03-21 This book proposes a new theoretical framework for agency thinking by examining the ethical, discursive and practical engagements of a group of women development workers in north west India with developmentalism and individual rights. Rethinking Agency asks an underexplored question: tracks the entry, encounter, experience and practice of developmentalism and individual rights and examines their normative and political trajectory. Through an ethnography of a moral encounter with developmentalism, it raises a critical question: how do we think of agency in oppressive contexts? Further, how do issues of risk, injury, coercion and oppression alter the conceptual mechanics of agency itself? The work will be invaluable to research organisations, development practitioners, policy makers and political journalists interested in questions of gender, political empowerment, rights and political participation and to academics and students in the fields of feminist theory, development studies, sociology, politics and gender studies.

Rethinking Second Language Learning Marisa

Cordella, Hui Huang, 2016-05-19 This book evaluates a project where formal classroom learning of a second language was supplemented with informal, natural interactions with older native speakers of the target language, delivering a number of pedagogical and societal benefits. The authors introduce a model of intergenerational, intercultural encounters which aims to promote the use of community language resources, enrich the experiences of young learners, foster greater understanding between generations, break down cultural stereotypes, encourage appreciation of different cultures and enhance the quality of life and community engagement of older people with a bi-multilingual background. It draws on theories of language acquisition, discourse analysis and psychosocial perspectives to propose a model of language learning for students that can be used for any language or locality. It is therefore an essential resource for graduate students, researchers and language

Re-thinking Development in Africa Komla Tsey, 2011 In this thought provoking book Komla Tsey argues that if governments NGOs development donor agencies and researchers are serious about development in Africa they need to get down to ground level both metaphorically and literally They must search deep into Africa's own rich oral traditions by creating space and opportunity for ordinary Africans whose voices have so far been conspicuously absent in the development discourse to tell and share their own stories of development Story sharing as research methodology acts as a mirror reflecting the participants self evaluation of where they have come from where they are now and how to proceed into the future They are strategies that can empower and enable individuals and communities of people to be agents of their own change which in Tsey's view is what development is all about

Re-Thinking Freire Chet A. Bowers, Frederique Apffel-Marglin, Fr,d,rique Apffel-Marglin, 2004-12-13 This landmark collection of essays by Third World activists highlights two major world changes which they argue have been neglected by Freire and his many followers the Third World grass roots cultural resistance to economic globalization and the ecological crisis One source of the activist authors criticisms of Freire's pedagogy is rooted in their attempts to combine consciousness raising with literacy programs in such diverse cultural settings as Bolivia Peru India Southern Mexico and Cambodia where they discovered that Freire's pedagogy is based on western assumptions that undermine indigenous knowledge systems Equally important these authors make the case in various ways that a major limitation with Freire's ideas and which is reproduced in the writings of his followers is that he did not recognize the cultural implications of the world's ecological crisis Several essays in the collection focus directly on how the cultural assumptions Freire took for granted were also the assumptions that gave conceptual and moral legitimacy to the Industrial Revolution and continue to be the basis of the thinking behind economic globalization The essays also explain why cultural diversity is essential to the preservation of biological diversity and how intergenerational knowledge and patterns of mutual aid within different cultures provide alternatives to a consumer dependent lifestyle In his Afterword C A Bowers addresses the need to adopt a more ecological way of thinking one that recognizes the many ways the individual is nested in the interdependent networks of culture and how diverse cultures are nested in natural systems It also stresses that one of the tasks of educators is to help students recognize the patterns and relationships of everyday life and to assess them in terms of their contribution to less consumer dependent relationships and activities As the essays in this volume affirm this involves facilitating students awareness of differences between cultures the impact of consumerism on ecosystems and the connections between hyper consumerism and environmental racism and the colonizing relationship of the South by the North Re Thinking Freire Globalization and the Environmental Crisis is a major contribution to this critical endeavor Rethink
