Animals and Their Children in Victorian Culture Brenda Ayres, Sarah Elizabeth Maier, 2019-11-20 Whether a secularized morality biblical worldview or unstated set of mores the Victorian period can and always will be distinguished from those before and after for its pervasive sense of the proper way of thinking speaking doing and acting Animals in literature taught Victorian children how to behave If you are a postmodern posthumanist you might argue But the animals in literature did not write their own accounts Animal characters may be the creations of writers imagination but animals did and do exist in their own right as did and do humans The original essays in Animals and Their Children in Victorian explore the representation of animals in children s literature by resisting an anthropomorphized perception of them Instead of focusing on the domestication of animals this book analyzes how animals in literature civilize children teaching them how to get along with fellow creatures both human and nonhuman

forward on the left The weight of the three occupants was balanced so nicely that their delicate craft floated on a perfectly even keel The lad near the prow was an Indian of a nobler type than is often seen in these later days when he has been deprived of the native surroundings that fit him like the setting of a gem The Indian although several years short of full manhood was tall with limbs slender as was usual in his kind but his shoulders were broad and his chest wide and deep His color was a light copper the tint verging toward red and his face was illumined wonderfully by black eyes that often flashed with a lofty look of courage and pride The young warrior Tayoga a coming chief of the clan of the Bear of the nation Onondaga of the League of the Hodenosaunee known to white men as the Iroquois was in all the wild splendor of full forest attire His headdress gustoweh was the product of long and careful labor It was a splint arch curving over the head and crossed by another arch from side to side the whole inclosed by a cap of fine network fastened with a silver band From the crest like the plume of a Roman knight a cluster of pure white feathers hung and on the side of it a white feather of uncommon size projected upward and backward the end of the feather set in a little tube which revolved with the wind the whole imparting a further air of distinction to his strong and haughty countenance
