"Love of Shopping" is Not a Gene Anne Innis Dagg, 2005 "Love of Shopping" is Not a Gene Anne Innis Dagg, 2005

Based on Darwin's theory of evolution and natural selection Evolutionary Psychology claims that it's all in our genes. At the beginning of the 21st century genes are used to explain almost every aspect of human life from social inequalities to health sexuality and criminality. This book is a critique of Darwinian psychology alias evolutionary psychology alias sociobiology the study of the social behavior of animals and people based on evolution. In this provocative work Innis Dagg an eminent and outspoken critic of this ideology first presents an overview of the theory and its popularity both among professionals and lay people then she examines concepts of social behavior based on genes vs culture including aggression in the form of rape infanticide homicide gang violence and war and general criminality homosexuality in both the human and the animal world and race IQ and environment. Focusing on the problems present in much Darwinian psychological research flawed data faulty analysis and political motives this controversial book offers the first comprehensible critique of the most popular scientific theory of the late 20th century Evolutionary Psychology. In the end Innis Dagg presents a new perspective which acknowledges the complexity of life by placing at its center the living organism in its environment rather than the gene.

Empress Maryanne L. Fisher, Justin R. Garcia, Rosemarie Sokol Chang, 2013-01-30 Over the last decade there has been increasing debate as to whether feminism and evolutionary psychology can co exist. Such debates often conclude with a resounding no often on the grounds that the former is a political movement while the latter is a field of scientific inquiry. In the midst of these debates there has been growing dissatisfaction within the field of evolutionary psychology about the way the discipline and others have repeatedly shown women to be in passive roles when it comes to survival and reproduction. Evolutionary behavioral research has made significant strides in the past few decades but continues to take for granted many theoretical assumptions that are perhaps in light of the most recent evidence misguided. As a result the research community has missed important areas of research and in some cases will likely come to inaccurate conclusions based on existing dogma rather than rigorous theoretically driven research. Bias in the field of evolutionary psychology echoes the complaints against the political movement attached to academic feminisms. This is an intellectual squabble where much is at stake including a fundamental understanding of the evolutionary significance of women's roles in culture mothering reproductive health and physiology mating female alliances female aggression and female intrasexual competition Evolution's Empress identifies women as active agents within the evolutionary process The chapters in this volume focus on topics as diverse as female social interactions mate competition and mating strategies motherhood women's health sex differences in communication and motivation sex discrimination and women in literature The volume editors bring together a diverse range of perspectives to demonstrate ways in which evolutionary approaches to human behavior have thus far been too limited By reconsidering the role of women in evolution this volume furthers the goal of generating dialogue between the realms of women's studies and evolutionary psychology

The Nature-Nurture Debates Dale Goldhaber, 2012-07-09 How is it possible that in more than one hundred years the nature nurture debate has not come to a satisfactory resolution The problem Dale Goldhaber argues lies not with the proposed answers but with the question itself In The Nature Nurture Debate Goldhaber reviews the four major perspectives on the issue behavior genetics environment evolutionary psychology and developmental systems theory and shows that the classic reductionist strategies behavior genetics and environmental approaches are incapable of resolving the issue because they each offer a false perspective on the process of human development It is only through a synthesis of the two holistic perspectives of evolutionary psychology and developmental systems theory that we will be able to understand the nature of human behavior
