Researching Reader Source Based Writing Across The Disciplines:

Constructing Rhetorical Education Davida Charney, Wilma R. Ebbitt, 1992 In nineteen essays illustrating its many aspects this book offers an argument for what it takes to construct a complete rhetorical education The editors take an approach that is pragmatic and pluralistic based as it is on the assumptions that a rhetorical education is not limited to teaching freshman composition or any specific writing course and that the contexts in which such an education occurs are not limited to classrooms This thought provoking volume stresses that while a rhetorical education results in the growth of writing skills its larger goal is to foster critical thinking

The Researching Reader Diane Dowdey, 1990 Teaching and Learning Source-Based Writing Rosemary Wette, 2023-09-21 This volume brings together significant findings approaches and research based pedagogies on teaching and learning source based writing A comprehensive update to the field this book presents source based writing as an essential skill that comes with its own specific set of challenges requiring a complex set of literacy skills and capabilities for mastery With contributors from leading scholars from around the world the volume addresses source based writing as a developmental issue and offers guidance for supporting novice academic writers on their path toward proficiency and accumulation of multifaceted skill set Chapters cover key topics including metacognitive skills the flipped classroom scaffolding assessment and ethical considerations With research reviews practical considerations and future directions as components of each chapter this book is ideal for courses on academic writing and second language writing

Reading Empirical Research Studies John R. Hayes, Richard E. Young, Michele L. Matchett, Maggie McCaffrey, Cynthia Cochran, 2020-10-07 For the most part those who teach writing and administer writing programs do not conduct research on writing Perhaps more significantly they do not often read the research done by others because effective reading of articles on empirical research requires special knowledge and abilities By and large those responsible for maintaining and improving writing instruction cannot without further training access work that could help them carry out their responsibilities more effectively This book is designed as a text in graduate programs that offer instruction in rhetoric and composition Its primary educational purposes are to provide models and critical methods designed to improve the reading of scientific discourse to provide models of effective research designs and projects appropriate to those learning to do empirical research in rhetoric Aiming to cultivate new attitudes toward empirical research this volume encourages an appreciation of the rhetorical tradition that informs the production and critical reading of empirical studies The book should also reinforce a slowly growing realization in English studies that empirical methods are not inherently alien to the humanities rather than methods extend the power of humanist researchers trying to solve the problems of their discipline Critical Reading in Higher Education Karen Manarin, Miriam Carey, Melanie Rathburn, Glen Ryland, 2015-12-15 Faculty often worry that students can't or won't read critically a foundational skill for success in academic and professional endeavors Critical reading refers both to reading for academic purposes and reading for social engagement This volume is based on collaborative multidisciplinary research into how students read in first year courses in subjects ranging from scientific literacy through composition The authors discovered the good students can read the bad students are not reading for social engagement and the ugly class assignments may be setting students up for failure and they offer strategies that can better engage students and provide more meaningful reading experiences
