Photographs and Architecture Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Eschewing the limiting idea that nineteenth century architecture photography merely reflects functionality the objective of this collection is to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time The essays hold appeal for social and cultural historians as well as those with an interest in the fields of art history urban geography history of travel and tourism Nineteenth century photographers captured what could be seen and what they wanted to be seen Their images informed of exploration progress heritage and destruction Architecture was a staple subject for the first generation of photographers as it patiently tolerated the long exposures of the early processes During its formative decades photography responded to evolutionary cultural forces of market and artistic production Photographs of architecture reflected a specific political or social context modulated through individual points of view For this reason the examination of each photographic image as a primary visual document and an aesthetic object rather than a technical milestone on a chronological trajectory affords a richer multi faceted approach to the extensive and complex corpus of photographs taken by photographers all over the world This project acknowledges the importance of technique in the early decades of photography but focuses on the thematic content of the material It places the photography of architecture in an international context under the contemporary critical lens sharpened by theoretical and cultural examinations of the topic

Crusader Art in the Holy Land, From the Third Crusade to the Fall of Acre Jaroslav Folda, 2005-09-05 Publisher Description Revealing the Holy Land Kathleen Stewart Howe, Santa Barbara Museum of Art, St. Louis Art Museum, 1997 This is the catalog for an exhibition of ninety nineteenth century photographs drawn primarily from the world class collection of Michael G Wilson Included are the starkly beautiful photographs of Sergeant James McDonald's surveys of Palestine and Jerusalem recently discovered photographs by Ernest Benecke and the rare photographs by Maxime Du Camp taken in 1850 as he traveled with Flaubert With the invention of photography and the increasing popularity of travel in the mid nineteenth century the Holy Land became one of the most photographed places on earth Interest in Jerusalem and Palestine was particularly pronounced in England partly because of England's need to control its routes to the riches of India but also because of Britain's cultural identification with the people and lands of the Bible Imperial ambition and deeply ingrained cultural associations resulted in a surge of photographic activity in Palestine McDonald's photographs from surveys of Jerusalem and the Sinai epitomize the dual imperatives of Bible and Empire Photography provided a new standard for authenticity in pictorial representations Early photographs were considered the ultimate bearers of reality at a time when viewers had not yet lost their naive faith in the objective accuracy of photography Throughout the last half of the nineteenth century the Holy Land drew legions of photographers amateurs recording a stop on the Grand Tour academics pursuing archaeological theories military surveyors all trying to capture the truthfulness of a land that had enormous spiritual emotional and political connotations for most of the Western world What they saw and how they saw it are the themes of this beautifully recorded collection
