Gender for the Warfare State Robin Truth Goodman, 2016-10-14 Gender for the Warfare State is the first scholarly investigation into the written works of U.S. women combat veterans in twenty-first century wars Most recent studies quantify military participation showing how many women participate in armed services and what their experiences are in a traditionally male institution Many of these treatments regard women as victims solely of enemy fire even as they are also often victims of their own military apparatus and of their own involvement in global aggression By applying literary analysis to a sociological question Gender for the Warfare State views women s experiences through story and literary traditions that carry meaning into present practices Goodman shows that women in combat are not just entering and being victimized in male institutions but are also actively changing the story of gender and thus the structure of power that is constructed through gender Moreover this book unveils a new narrative of care that affects economic relations more broadly and the contemporary politics of the liberal social contract Women s participation in combat is not just a U S event but global and therefore has a deeper historical range than current sociological accounts imply The book compares the political contexts of women s entry into war now with their prior twentieth century contributions to wars in other cultural settings and then uses this comparison to show a variety of meanings at play in the gender of war Women in the United States Armed Forces

Stacey Peebles, 2011-04-15 Our collective memories of World War II and Vietnam have been shaped as much by memoirs novels and films as they have been by history books In Welcome to the Suck Stacey Peebles examines the growing body of contemporary war stories in prose poetry and film that speak to the American soldier s experience in the Persian Gulf War and the Iraq War Stories about war always encompass ideas about initiation masculinity cross cultural encounters and trauma Peebles shows us how these timeless themes find new expression among a generation of soldiers who have grown up in a time when it has been more acceptable than ever before to challenge cultural and societal norms and who now have unprecedented and immediate access to the world away from the battlefield through new media and technology Two Gulf War memoirs by Anthony Swofford Jarhead and Joel Turnipseed Baghdad Express provide a portrait of soldiers living and fighting on the cusp of the major political and technological changes that would begin in earnest just a

Gender Matters in Global Politics , Plenty of Time When We Get Home: Love and Recovery in the Aftermath of War Kayla Williams,2014-02-10 When SPC Kayla Williams and SGT Brian McGough met at a mountain outpost in Iraq in 2003 only their verbal sparring could have betrayed a hint of attraction Neither could have predicted the sequence of events that would shape their lives Brian on his way back to base after mid tour leave was wounded by a roadside bomb that sent shrapnel through his brain Kayla waited anxiously for news and on returning home sought out Brian The two began a tentative romance and later married but neither anticipated the consequences of Brian's injury on their lives Lacking essential support for returning veterans from the military and the VA Kayla and Brian suffered through posttraumatic stress amplified by his violent mood swings her struggles to reintegrate into a country still oblivious to women veterans and what seemed the callous consumerist indifference of civilian society at large Kayla persevered So did Brian They fought for their marriage drawing on remarkable reservoirs of courage and commitment They confronted their demons head on impatient with phoniness of any sort Inspired by an unwavering ethos of service they continued to stand on common ground Finally they found their own paths to healing and wholeness both as individuals and as a family in dedication to a larger community

Sexing War/Policing Gender Linda Åhäll, 2015-02-11 Historically there has been reluctance from mainstream IR scholars as well as feminists to seriously engage with women's agency in warfare Instead scholarship has tended to focus on women's activism for peace or to ignore women's agency altogether This book rectifies this omission by exploring the cultural understanding of actors agents and structures of war and how can we make sense of attitudes towards women agency and war today By using a poststructuralist feminist perspective and by analysing empirical cases from a Western war on terror cultural context Ahall argues that all types of stories are informed by ideas about motherhood and maternal reproduction as the foundation of sexual difference This does not only mean that women are judged read valued based on the shape of their maternalised bodies rather than what they actually do but it means that ideas about motherhood not motherhood itself function to police contemporary gender norms and contemporary understandings of agency in war Overall this book argues that maternalist war stories function to reiterate traditional heteronormative gender roles This is how a body politics of war is not only policing gender norms but actually writing sex itself The body politics of war told through maternalist war stories is a process in which the sexing of war means the policing of gender borders with motherhood acting as the border agent This work will be of interest to students and scholars in areas such as gender political violence and international relations
