Overseas Research And Development By United States Multinationals:

Internationalization of Research and Development by Multinational Enterprises Robert D. Pearce, 1989-06-18 Providing a broadly based survey of existing knowledge of the important emerging phenomenon of internationalized research and development operations by multinational enterprises this book argues that these enterprises are recognizing the need for a global perspective on the creation of technology

International Technology Transfer (RLE International Business) Edward Safarian, Gilles Bertin, 2013-05-07 This book examines the international technology transfer process and the role of both multinationals and host country governments in that process with emphasis on the experience of the more developed countries It explores a range of issues and presents much original thinking and research findings It discusses in particular the strategies of the multinationals assessing how far they are willing to accept technology transfer to external partners as opposed to subsidiaries which they can control It also examines how far technical transfers are successful from the viewpoint of the firm and countries involved arguing that governments are most likely to succeed in attracting multinational transfers if they are aware of and accommodate to some degree multinationals preferences

Managing the Multinational Subsidiary Hamid Etemad, Louise Séguin

Dulude, 2018-04-17 This book first published in 1986 is concerned with the changing world environment for multinational business and the relationships between multinational parent companies and their subsidiaries which will be necessary to meet the challenges that are being faced The study argues that key changes to the environment are the revolution in manufacturing which has permitted cheap production in one location of complicated products for a world market world product mandating whereby all a company's country subsidiaries produce different product lines for the world market pressure and incentives from host governments for technology transfer in their favour and for research and development facilities within their territory the growth of highly efficient international trading and distribution intermediaries and the complications of increased barter trade arising from international debt problems and currency shortages All this means that the management of multinational subsidiaries has to change This book reviews the challenges and shows a way forward

(1977-1981 : Carter),1980 The Geography of Multinational Firms Pontus Braunerhjelm,Karolina Ekholm,1998-04-30
 Pontus Braunerhjelm and Karolina Ekholm Over recent decades foreign direct investment FDI has become a major force in the global economy The geographical pattern of capital formation trade and technological spillovers across countries and regions are to an increasing extent determined by the strategies chosen by multinational firms MNFs Between 1982 and 1994 the rate of growth of the global FDI stock was more than twice that of gross fixed capital formation the growth of sales by foreign affiliates of multinational firms well exceeded that of world exports and by 1994 the MNFs accounted for approximately 6 percent of world output United Nations 1997 pp xv xvi The overall mechanisms behind this rapid internationalization in terms of multinational production have been attributed to the dismantling of trade barriers and the deregulation of capital markets together with the advances in information technology that have facilitated the coordination and monitoring of internationally dispersed production This development carries two important implications First firms operate in markets characterized by much tougher competition than only a decade ago and second countries and regions are involved in competition for production to a much larger extent than before This book addresses questions related to the location and geographical dispersion of the activities by multinational firms a topic which has become of increasing concern to policy makers Multinational Enterprises in India Nagesh Kumar,2002-09-11 Multinational enterprises play a vital role in the economic activity of most developing countries In India MNE affiliates dominate whole sectors of industry such as plastics and pharmaceuticals characterised by a high degree of product differentiation complex technology and high skill intensity Such advantages combined with intangible assets centralised decision making and global outlook lead to a divergence of approach between MNEs and their local counterparts in host developing countries This book analyses the inter industry pattern of MNEs in India in the framework of the internationalisation theory also examining the comparative behaviour of MNE affiliates and LCEs in terms of conduct and performance The book goes further to explain the different performance of these two strategic groups by assessing profit and export Multinationals and the U.S. technology base : final report of the multinationals project. , Factors Affecting U.S. International Competitiveness United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Foreign Relations,1976 American Universities in a Global Market Charles T. Clotfelter,2010-04-28 In higher education the United States is the preeminent global leader dominating the list of the world's top research universities But there are signs that America's position of global leadership will face challenges in the future as it has in other realms of international competition American Universities in a Global Market addresses the variety of issues crucial to understanding this preeminence and this challenge The book examines the various factors that contributed to America s success in higher education including openness to people and ideas generous governmental support and a tradition of decentralized friendly competition It also explores the advantages of holding a dominant position in this marketplace and examines the current state of American higher education in a comparative context placing particular emphasis on how market forces affect universities By discussing the differences in quality among students and institutions around the world this volume sheds light on the singular aspects of American higher education

International Taxation and Multinational Activity James R. Hines, 2009-02-15 Because the actions of multinational corporations have a clear and direct effect on the flow of capital throughout the world how and why these firms behave the way they do is a major issue for national governments and their policymakers With an unprecedented ability to adjust the scale character and location of their global operations international corporations have become increasingly sensitive to the kind and degree of tax obligations imposed on them by both host and home countries Tax rules affect the volume of foreign direct investment corporate borrowing transfer pricing dividend and royalty payments and research and development National governments that tax the profits of international firms face important challenges in designing tax policies to attract them This collection examines the global ramifications of tax policies offering up to date theoretically innovative and empirically sound perspectives on a problem of immense significance to future economic growth around the globe

Multinational Firms, Innovation and Productivity D. Castellani, Davide Castellani, Antonello Zanfei, 2006 The book assumes an original place in the literature Castellani and Zanfei show that the economic impact of MNEs on innovation and productivity depends on evolutionary features of firms and industries particularly on the heterogeneity of firm strategies and behaviours this volume contains high quality well written research Simona Iammarino Research Policy this book offers the reader a well written and very comprehensive analysis on the link between innovation and internalization which leads to insights into firm heterogeneity The authors have succeeded in synthesizing the vast body of theoretical and empirical research and given an up to date overview of the various issues involved This is then complemented with their own research findings The book will undoubtedly enrich the debate on the behavior and impact of MNEs Yama Temouri Journal of International Business Studies Davide Castellani and Antonello Zanfei two well known Italian economists have brought forth an excellent new book I think this book will serve as a starting point for many interesting studies both because of its findings and because of its empirical and theoretical rigour the book lays an excellent and empirically well founded foundation that opens the way for what we need most in research on the international innovatory activities and R D configurations of MNCs intrafirm data and the study of intrafirm processes configurations and specific interactions with the host country environment The book to me is an important step in moving innovation research forward in this direction I am sure that this book will serve as a thought provoking starting point for many future studies on firms international innovatory activities and therefore recommend it without any reservation Marcus M Keupp Creativity and Innovation Management Castellani and Zanfei have developed an original and comprehensive analysis of the role of multinational firms in the transfer creation and diffusion of technology By developing their view of the multinationals as double network institutions the authors provide new insights on a variety of key issues at the frontier of economics of international production and innovation This book is thought provoking incisive and topical and should be required reading for both economists and policymakers alike Rajneesh Narula University of Reading UK Castellani and Zanfei present an in depth theoretical and empirical analysis of the key issues underpinning the relationship between innovation and multinationality This book is strongly recommended reading for any researcher working on innovation or multinationality or the interface between the two Grazia Ietto Gillies London South Bank University UK This book gets to the root of how and why multinational firms differ in the cross border creation transfer and diffusion of technology and provides fresh evidence on the effects that these differences have on productivity and innovation in the economic systems in which they are active Davide Castellani and Antonello Zanfei consider multinationals as heterogeneous institutions that combine internal networks of subsidiaries with external networks of collaborative linkages to bridge different economic and innovation systems They examine heterogeneity in productivity and innovative behaviour between multinational and national firms as well as across and within multinationals The authors argue that not every foreign firm is a good source of externality and not every domestic firm is equally well placed to benefit from multinationals It is shown that spillovers from multinationals differ according to the technological profiles embeddedness and linkage creation of both foreign and domestic firms active in local markets The book supports this view with empirical evidence based on illustrative case studies and on econometric analysis using extensive firm level datasets on multinati
