published in 1995 Hughes's three contributions to the collective effort were nominated by most critics as outstanding. He had shown that rare translator's gift for providing not just an accurate account of the original but one so thoroughly imbued with his own qualities that it was as if Latin and English poet were somehow the same person. Tales from Ovid which went on to win the Whitbread Prize for Poetry continued the project of recreation with 24 passages including the stories of Phaeton, Actaeon, Echo and Narcissus, Procne, Midas and Pyramus and Thisbe. In them Hughes's supreme narrative and poetic skills combine to produce a book that stands alongside his Crow and Gaudete as an inspired addition to the myth making of our time.

Ovid Selected Works Ovid, 2006-01-01 The compilers J. C. and M. J. Thornton have used the translations of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries which they believe render more faithfully than those of any other age, the even clarity of Ovid's style. The volume commences with Marlowe's free translation of The Elegies which has a youthful zest about it that might well have saved it from oblivion even without Marlowe's later fame. Next comes The Letters of the Heroines translated by George Turberville followed by Francis Wolferton's rendering of the three books of The Art of Love which has had few translators. Wolferton's version is here revised and presented in a way that does not seek to bowdlerize the serious purpose of the book while retaining the polite urbanity of the original. Arthur Golding's version of The Metamorphoses which conveys in the swing of the lines and vividness of the language the enthusiasm and enjoyment of the translation is also included and reminds one that Shakespeare plucked his odoriferous flowers of fancy from its pages. Other selections from this very representative volume include John Gower's translation of The Festivals, Zachary Caitlin's John Gower's and Wye Saltonstall's Letters from Exile and Thomas Underdown's Invective against Ibis.
