Curtiss P-40 Carl Molesworth,2013-11-20 An improved version of the Allison V 1710 engine gave rise to the Curtiss H 87 which began life in 1941 as the P 40D and featured a completely redesigned fuselage The shorter and deeper nose of the new fighter gave it a decidedly snub nosed appearance compared to the earlier P 40 models Curtiss continued to tweak the H 87 for the next two years in the search for better performance but the last major version the P 40N was only marginally faster than the first In the process Curtiss even tried an engine change to the Packard Merlin in the P 40F and L but to no avail What the late model P 40s lacked in speed and service ceiling they traded for maneuverability durability and availability Their niche became fighter bomber operations and they fought on fronts as varied as the arctic wastes of the Aleutian Islands and Iceland the steaming jungles of the South Pacific and the barren deserts of North Africa P 40s were a common sight in the skies over Burma and China Sicily and Italy and western Russia as well By the time production ceased in 1944 Curtiss had produced nearly 14 000 P 40s

Air Force Magazine ,1999-07 P-40 Warhawk Aces of the MTO Carl Molesworth,2013-01-20 Thrown into action following the Torch landings of late 1942 the green American pilots flying the obsolescent P 40F suffered cruelly at the hands of seasoned German fighter pilots flying superior machines Those that survived learnt quickly and a handful of Warhawk pilots succeeded in making ace by the time the Axis forces surrendered in North Africa The action then shifted to Sicily and Italy and the P 40 remained in service until mid 1944

This book charts the careers of the 23 men who succeeded in making ace during that time despite the advent of much better P 47 and P 51 fighters

Churchill's Colonel Anthony Barne, 2019-12-27 A British officer's day to day observations throw interesting light on life and soldiering during the Second World War The NYMAS Review Anthony Barne started his diary in August 1939 as a young recently married captain in the Royal Dragoons stationed in Palestine He wrote an entry for every day of the war often with great difficulty sometimes when dog tired or under fire sometimes when things looked dark and desperate but more often in sunshine and optimism surrounded by good fellows who kept one cheerful and helped one through the sad and difficult times His diary ends in July 1945 by which time he was commanding officer of the 4th Hussars having recently visited Downing Street for lunch alone with the Churchills The diaries have an enormous scope covering time in Palestine and Egypt before he joins the Eighth Army describing the retreat back to El Alamein the battle and its aftermath He ends the campaign commanding his regiment He often graphically details the physical realities of war the appalling conditions in the desert the bombardments of the regiment from the air the deaths and serious injuries of fellow soldiers In 1943 he flies down to Rhodesia to see his wife and infant son before returning to Cairo to join Churchill's regiment the 4th Hussars Arriving in Italy in 1944 he recounts the campaign as the Allies push north With a tone that varies wildly often witty sometimes outrageous but also poignant and philosophical this is not just a memoir of war but a portrait of another time that showcases the author's warmth and keen eye for the absurd
