The Internet and Social Change Carla G. Surratt, 2017-07-06 Starting with only four hosts in 1969 the Internet consisted of more than 56 million hosts by the end of 1999 In 1993 the World Wide Web was only 130 sites strong six years later it boasted more than seven million sites Despite this explosive growth of the Internet and computer technology little is known about the social implications of computer mediated communications In this work the author uses social science theory to evaluate the social transformations taking place today She asks whether human beings use the Internet to change basic social institutions and if so whether these changes are a matter of degree only or represent an overthrow of previous modes of organizing The work examines the rise of the Internet as the logical extension of the Industrial Revolution and urbanization consistent with the basic tenets of modernity and offers a new conceptual framework through which to understand the Internet

Global Television Formats Sharon Shahaf, Tasha Oren, 2013-06-17 Global Television Formats aims to revise the place of the global in television studies The essays gathered here explore the diversity of global programming and approaches and ask how to theorize contemporary global formats and thus re shape our understanding of television as at once a shared global and specific local text an economic system a socio political institution and a popular practice The contributors explore a wide array of television programming from the Middle East Western and Eastern Europe South Asia North America Latin America and Brazil and represent a br

Information Technologies and Global Politics James N. Rosenau, J. P. Singh, 2012-02-01 Returning to the fundamentals of political science namely power and governance this book studies the relationship between information technologies and global politics Key issue areas are carefully examined security including information warfare and terrorism global consumption and production international telecommunications culture and identity formation human rights humanitarian assistance the environment and biotechnology Each demonstrates the validity of the view now prevalent within international relations research the shifting of power and the locus of authority away from the state Three major conclusions are offered First the nation state must now confront support or coexist with other international actors non governmental and intergovernmental organizations multinational corporations transnational social movements and individuals Second our understanding of instrumental and structural powers must be reconfigured to account for digital information technologies Finally and perhaps most importantly information technologies are now reconstituting actor identities and issues

Power and Security in the Information Age Myriam Dunn Cavelty, Victor Mauer, 2016-03-23 The marriage of computers and telecommunications the global integration of these technologies and their availability at low cost is bringing about a fundamental transformation in the way humans communicate and interact But however much consensus there may be on the growing importance of information technology today agreement is far more elusive when it comes to pinning down the impact of this development on security issues Written by scholars in international relations this volume focuses on the role of the state in defending against cyber threats and in securing the information age The manuscript is captivating with the significance and actuality of the issues discussed and the logical knowledgeable and engaged presentation of the issues The essays intrigue and provoke with a number of fresh hypotheses observations and suggestions and they contribute to mapping the diverse layers actors approaches and policies of the cyber security realm Constructing International Relations: The Next Generation Karin M. Fierke, Knud Erik Jorgensen, 2015-06-01 The constructivist approach is the most important new school in the field of postcold war international relations Constructivists assume that interstate and interorganizational relations are always at some level linguistic contexts Thus they bridge IR theory and social theory This book explores the constructivist approach in IR as it has been developing in the larger context of social science worldwide with younger IR scholars building anew on the tradition of Wittgenstein Habermas Luhman Foucault and others The contributors include Friedrich Kratochwil Harald Muller Matthias Albert Jennifer Milliken Birgit Locher Dodge and Elisabeth Prugl Ben Rosamond Nicholas Onuf Audie Klotz Lars Lose and the editors Culture and Politics in the Information Age Frank Webster, 2002-01-04 This volume addresses these key issues through an analysis of important theoretical debates on issues such as digital democracy cultural politics and transnational communities Featuring contributors from both sides of the Atlantic the book contains a series of case studies on new social movements including campaigns on the environment gender animal rights and human rights It combines cutting edge research with theoretical material and makes an important contribution to this highly topical and rapidly growing area This book will be invaluable reading for students in areas including Politics Communications and IT Sociology and Cultural Studies
