Abstract

This study assesses the role of freedom of communication in modulating the effect of political participation on electoral outcomes in Africa since the turn of the 21st century. The freedom of communication is proxied in terms of freedom of academics and cultural expression, freedom of speech, the freedom to express one's opinion, and men's and women's freedom of communication. After adopting robust cross-sectional dependence estimates of the Driscoll/Kraay strategy, the findings reveal that freedom of communication is essential for a free and fair electoral process. Similarly, the findings depict that political participation increases the probability of a fair election process and outcomes in Africa. The study recommends that African countries' design platforms in their respective legislations that ensure freedom of speech and expression, and political inclusion with the open debate concerning governance to promote free and fair consistent elections that respect human rights and ensure political stability.

KEY WORDS

Africa, democracy, democratization, elections, electoral outcome, free and fair elections, freedom of communication, freedom of expression, freedom of speech, governance, political inclusion, political participation

Press Freedom And Communication In Africa:

Press Freedom and Communication in Africa Festus Eribo, William Jong-Ebot, 1997 Recent years have seen considerable growth in the media in Africa with increases in the number of newspapers and radio and television stations At the same time there has been an increase in the number of arrests of journalists and broadcasters and various forms of censorship have been introduced The essays in this volume examine press censorship past and present and bring a fresh perspective to the position of the mass media in the African continent

Press Freedom in Africa Herman Wasserman, 2013-09-13 This book gives an overview of current debates surrounding press freedom in Africa in response to ongoing contestations between media and governments on the continent Through case studies of individual African countries as well as international comparisons a wide range of global contributors provide critical assessments of the state of press freedom on the continent and critical perspectives on the dominant discourses around freedom and democracy Some fear an alarming slide towards a media intolerant environment in South Africa and the proposed Media Appeals Tribunal and the Protection of State Information Bill POSIB have met with strong criticism from journalism practitioners and educators This book examines these and other recent developments seen to represent a threat to press freedom on the African continent Contributors to the volume take a comparative look at the situation in South Africa within a broader global context of transitions to democracy and globalised marketization of the media as well as inspecting specific African examples that may serve to illuminate broader trends Case studies from different African countries are examined but in the process the discourses around press freedom are also subjected to critical scrutiny Critics state that the South African media are not without fault and that part of journalism scholarship's role is to continue to point to these shortcomings and to suggest ways of improving the media's democratic responsibility Press Freedom in Africa provides a range of perspectives on the heated debates surrounding press freedom It illustrates the importance of research based scholarly interventions into the often emotional and rhetorical debates surrounding the role of the media in African society This book was originally published as a special issue of Ecquid Novi African Journalism Studies

Journalism and Mass Communication in Africa Festus Eribo, Enoch Tanjong, 2002-01-01 Journalism and Mass Communication in Africa provides the first in depth analysis of the evolution of mass communication and the impact of new media technologies in Cameroon Written and edited by African scholars this one stop volume maps out for the student of international communications and the Africa specialist the changing media ecology of Cameroon and provides practical survey methods for communication research The work details the impact mass public communication has had on the empowerment of Cameroon's 15 million people and the development of grassroots participatory democracy It offers new insight into the development of Cameroon's state and privately owned oral print and electronic media and analyzes the growth of the West African country's public relations advertising and publishing industries

The Leadership Challenge in Africa John Mukum Mbaku, Joseph Takougang, 2004 This collection of essays written by an outstanding group of scholars makes a significant contribution to the debate on poverty alleviation in Cameroon the country's stalled transition to democratic governance identity and citizenship and the equitable allocation of resources The essays contain a refreshing rigorous and informative analysis of the Biya regime opposition politics and provides practical strategies to enhance peaceful co existence and sustainable development in the country

Media and Democracy in Africa Michael Leslie, 2017-07-05 Recent discussion of democratization in Africa has focused primarily on the reform of formal state institutions the public service the judiciary and the legislature Similarly both scholars and activists have shown interest in how associational life and with it a civil society might be enhanced in the countries of the African continent Much less concern however has been directed to the communications media although they form a vital part of this process Media and Democracy in Africa provides the first comprehensive and up to date assessment of the role of the media in political change in sub Saharan Africa The central argument of the volume is that while the media may still be relatively weak compared to their positions in liberal democracies they have come to play a much more important role than ever before since independence Although they have not yet demonstrated sufficient effectiveness as public watchdogs and agenda setters they have succeeded in creating new communicative spaces for people who have previously been intimidated or silent Building on this the contributors argue that a different conceptualization of democratization than the mainstream currently uses may be necessary to capture the process in Africa where it is characterized by contestation rather than consolidation This volume shows that the media scene in Africa is diverse It stretches from the well developed and technologically advanced situation in South Africa to the still fledgling media operations that are typical in sub Saharan Africa In these countries print media as well as television and radio are just beginning to take their place in society and do so using simple and often outdated technology The volume also examines how these growing outlets are supplemented by informal media the so called radio trottoir or rumor mill whereby the autocratic and bureaucratic direction of public affairs are subject to private speculation and analysis Media and Democracy in Africa is organized to provide a historical perspective on the evolution of the African media placing the present in the context of the past including both colonial and post colonial experiences It will be of interest to Africa area specialists students of media and communications political scientists and sociologists

The SAGE Handbook of Television Studies Manuel Alvarado, Milly Buonanno, Herman Gray, Toby Miller, 2014-12-09 Genuinely transnational in content as sensitive to the importance of production as consumption covering the full range of approaches from political economy to textual analysis and written by a star studded cast of contributors Emeritus Professor Graeme Turner University of Queensland Finally we have before us a first rate and wide ranging volume that reframes television studies afresh boldly synthesising debates in the humanities cultural studies and social sciences This volume should be in every library and media scholar's bookshelf Professor Ravi Sundaram Centre for the Study of Developing

Societies Bringing together a truly international spread of contributors from across the UK US South America Mexico and Australia this Handbook charts the field of television studies from issues of ownership and regulation through to reception and consumption Separate chapters are dedicated to examining the roles of journalists writers cinematographers producers and manufacturers in the production process whilst others explore different formats including sport novella and soap opera news and current affairs music and reality TV The final section analyses the pivotal role played by audiences in the contexts of gender race and class and spans a range of topics from effects studies to audience consumption The SAGE Handbook of Television Studies is an essential reference work for all advanced undergraduates graduate students and academics across broadcasting mass communication and media studies

Nation-Building, Propaganda, and Literature in Francophone Africa Dominic Thomas, 2002-11-19 The relationship between literature the state is examined in this discussion of Francophone African literature Dominic Thomas considers the case of the Congo where the recent transition to democracy was in part inspired by the works of Sony Labou Tansi Henri Lopes Emmanuel Dongala among others

Newsmaking Cultures in Africa Hayes Mawindi Mabweazara, 2018-06-05 This book contributes to a broadened theorisation of journalism by exploring the intricacies of African journalism and its connections with the material realities that underpin the profession on the continent It pulls together theoretically driven studies that collectively deploy a wide range of evidence to shed some light on newsmaking cultures in Africa the everyday routines defining epistemologies as well as ethical dilemmas The volume digs beneath the standardised and universalised veneer of professionalism to unpack routine practices and normative trends shaped by local factors including the structural conditions of deprivation entrenched political instability and interference pervasive neo patrimonial governance systems and the influences of technological developments These varied and complex circumstances are shown to profoundly shape the foundations of journalism in Africa resulting in routine practices that are both normatively distinct and equally in tune with imported Western journalistic cultures The book thus broadly points to the dialectical nature of news production and the inconsistent and contradictory relationships that characterise news production cultures in Africa

Media Reforms and Democratization in Emerging Democracies of Sub-Saharan Africa Ufuoma Akpojivi, 2018-04-03 This book examines the media reform processes and re democratization projects of Ghana and Nigeria s emerging democracies It evaluates and critiques these reform processes arguing that because of dependency approaches resulting from the transplanting of policy framework from the West into these emerging democracies the policy goals and objectives of the reforms have not been achieved Consequently the inherent socio cultural economic and political factors coupled with the historical antecedents of these countries have also affected the reform process Drawing from policy documents analyses and interviews Ufuoma Akpojivi argues that the lack of citizens active participation in policy processes has led to neo liberalization and the continued universalization of Western ideologies such as democracy media freedom and independence Akpojivi posits that the recognition of socio cultural political and economic factors inherent to these emerging democracies coupled with the communal participation of citizens will facilitate true media reform processes and development of these countries
