Press Gang James Barrett Lamb, 1979 You Had to Be There Robert Collins, 2012-11-13 They gained their maturity in an age of monumental and unprecedented change from horse and buggy Model T Ford and crank telephone to moonwalks space shuttles and the Internet They are better educated more affluent more vigorous and longer lived than any generation before them yet obstinately cling to a forthright simplicity no generation is likely to regain They are proudly old fashioned in their outlook hardworking and frugal in their ways They are the last enthusiastic patriots the last to accept authority with respect They are the last generation to have reached adulthood without television credit cards computers or the Pill Their younger critics may call them old fogies Robert Collins calls them Generation M for mature In You Had to Be There Robert Collins gives us the entire history of this extraordinary and hugely influential generation Through this fascinating story he weaves the voices of Canadians from across the country who speak with humour regret and passion about the hardships and triumphs of their lives and about the widening gap between themselves and the rest of Canada Generation gaps are as old as humankind but rarely has there been as much misunderstanding and veiled animosity as there is between young and old today Robert Collins accounts for the prejudices pokes fun at the rivalries and with humour and sympathy invites younger Canadians to re examine their parents or grandparents lives and consider maybe for the first time the true proportion of their legacy

The Rise of the Canadian Newspaper George Fetherling, 1990 This lively readable survey describes how Canadian newspapers were born as a tool of government gradually became a tool of various political parties and freed themselves only after their popularity had been surpassed by television and other media A valuable account of social history this book traces the rise of Canadian newspapers from the Colonial Reform Press and their crucial political role through the western expansion and development of professional staff and reporters to the birth of independent papers
