Gentlemen Capitalists Howard L. Malchow, 1992 A Stanford University Press classic Organizing Democracy Henk te Velde, Maartje Janse, 2017-05-20 This book explores the new types of political organization that emerged in Western Europe and the United States during the nineteenth century from popular meetings to single issue organizations and political parties The development of these has often been used to demonstrate a movement towards democratic representation or political institutionalization This volume challenges the idea that the development of democracy is a story of rise and progress at all It is rather a story of continuous but never completely satisfying attempts of interpreting the rule of the people Taking the perspective of nineteenth century organizers as its point of departure this study shows that contemporaries hardly distinguished between petitioning meeting and association The attraction of organizing was that it promised representation accountability and popular participation Only in the twentieth century did parties reliable partners for the state in averting revolution managing the unpredictable effects of universal suffrage and reforming society This collection analyzes them in their earliest stage as just one of several types of civil society organizations that did not differ that much from each other The promise of organization and the experiments that resulted from it deeply impacted modern politics Catalog of

Richardson,1993 Since the early 1950s pressure groups have been recognized as playing a key role in the policy process in western democracies As legislatures and political parties have declined in influence the relationship between pressure groups and government has become highly developed This has presented both problems and opportunities for the participation of ordinary citizens in the governmental process This book reviews some of the key theoretical concepts developed in the study of pressure groups and presents a series of up to date studies of their role in particular countries including the U K the U S France and the former Soviet Union It is an authoritative collection edited by one of Britain s leading pressure group analysts and will be invaluable for both students and practitioners who want to understand current developments in the lobbying process Nineteenth-century Britain, 1815-1914 David Nicholls,1978 Documents of the First Chambers of Commerce in Britain and Ireland, 1767-1839 Robert John Bennett,2018 This book is the first systematic collection of documents for the history of early chambers of commerce The documents cover all local chambers founded 1767 1839 as well as those that were unsuccessful in establishment It covers all chambers in the UK and Ireland and the significant developments in the early USA Canada and Jamaica This provides to other researchers local libraries and archives a firm foundation of aligned local information The documents include the rules charters and founding process of all chambers which are analysed in the Introduction The documents also cover the wider discourse from the 1690s that preceded chamber foundation how differences of opinion and disputes between members were managed their main political campaigns their most significant services and activities how parliamentary law agents were deployed and their relation with the General Chamber of Manufactures 1785 7 and the union of chambers 1790 1805 An appendix lists all known early chamber members 1767 1839 and provides information on their business characteristics The documents and the commentary challenge previous academic assessments offering important new insights into chamber persistence and interrelations with protest and reform agendas The English law chambers have common origins and retain the unifying characteristic of being formed under common law as independent voluntary bodies This contrasts with most European chamber models With no compulsory membership the documents evidence how early chamber leaders developed methods to manage the dynamics of exit voice and loyalty and encourage involvement in order to limit free riding
