Frommer's Irreverent Guide to Seattle & Portland Jim Gullo, 1999-11-15 Like being taken around by a savvy local. The New York Times Little fluff and lots of fun Boston Globe Hipper and savvier than other guides. Diversion magazine Are you tired of cliché-ridden guidebooks packed with promotional fluff? Then move over to the Irreverent Guides, the travel series that no tourist board would dare to recommend. Look inside for the lowdown on Hotels that make you glad it rains all the time. What Seattle envies about Portland and why Portland wishes it could be more like its northern neighbor. Must-see places like the Portland grade school that serves excellent pizza and beer and the Sleepless in Seattle houseboat. Where to rub elbows with Bill Gates, Paul Allen, and their minions of Microsoft millionaires. How to dress down to fit in with the Aggressively Plain Northwest fashion scene. And much more. Food and Drink in American History Andrew F. Smith, 2013-10-28 This three-volume encyclopedia on the history of American food and beverages serves as an ideal companion resource for social studies and American history courses, covering topics ranging from early American Indian foods to mandatory nutrition information at fast-food restaurants. The expression you are what you eat certainly applies to Americans not just in terms of our physical health but also in the myriad ways that our taste preferences, eating habits, and food culture are intrinsically tied to our society and history. This standout reference work comprises two volumes containing more than 600 alphabetically arranged historical entries on American foods and beverages as well as dozens of historical recipes for traditional American foods and a third volume of more than 120 primary source documents. Never before has there been a reference work that coalesces this diverse range of information into a single set. The entries in this set provide information that will transform any American history research project into an engaging learning experience. Examples include explanations of how tuna fish became a staple food product for Americans, how the canning industry emerged from the Civil War, the difference between Americans and people of other countries in terms of what percentage of their income is spent on food and beverages, and how taxation on beverages like tea, rum, and whisky set off important political rebellions in U.S. history.

The Last Supper Sam Kass, 2015-10-07 A former senior food policy advisor to President Obama breaks down how changing the way we eat can help fix the climate crisis, from rethinking daily habits to investing in new technology. Smart, timely, and full of purpose. Michelle Obama: A wake-up call for the future of our planet. Chef Jos Andr s: An impressively compelling manifesto for food system transformation. Marion Nestle: As a chef in high-end restaurants and later in the home of then-Senator Barack and Michelle Obama, Sam Kass read a lot about how eating organic and buying local was the key to remaking a food system otherwise built on climate change causing petroleum But when he followed the Obamas into the White House he realized something While it s easy to identify the problems in our spoiled food system fixing it is not as simple as getting your eggs from the farmers market Now investing in startups trying to solve the environmental and human challenges of climate change in food and agriculture In The Last Supper Kass shares everything he s learned simplifying it all down to what he calls The Core Principle Maximize nutrient production while minimizing environmental damage He lays out an accessible action based plan to save the environment and in turn ourselves based on four pillars of change Culture shifting the way we think about and approach the environment as individuals is the foundation of broader change Policy and legislation the limited but important role of policy and how change is made on a governmental level and what we can do about it Business How to change the businesses that provide the food we eat as the only path to change our food system Technology a deep dive into the future with the new and innovative technologies researchers are using to save the environment from CRISPR and Loam Bio to the magic of mycelium and the secret weapon that is regenerative farming Through anecdotes interviews and an astounding amount of research The Last Supper gives us the tools we need to make a difference
