Maire Heikkinen, Saila Ovaska, 1998 Abstract We present a case study of the experiences gained of in house Lotus Notes application development in a software house which is also involved in Notes application development for customers The software house SF a pseudonym is one of the first Notes application developers in Finland The time range of data collection for this report is 1992 1994 and we describe findings of early adopters of groupware technology In SF almost all internal operational applications are implemented as Lotus Notes applications deliberately testing the limits of the software as application generation platform The findings of this study base on a log analysis of actual use activity and questionnaires filled in by the workers of SF The gains of deploying Notes in SF seem to resemble those of any other organisation better communication easier information sharing reduced output on paper The change impacts of Notes applications are discussed in three main areas customer relations groupwork and organisational relations A finding of the study not brought up in previous literature is that the company has used Notes also in application development areas where it is found not fit well by some informants Some of the applications developed are too complex for the task at hand or prematurely taken into production use The problems seem to relate to the Notes infrastructure enabling fast application development Still some problems are due to the lack of a corporate policy in developing and using the applications which was also noted by the informants     Lotus Notes Erica Kerwien, 1994 Written by a principle analyst on the Lotus Notes team this is the book you need if you're developing applications for Notes. It doesn't matter what platform programmers are developing on; they'll find the information they need right here. They'll also find an exception report on what differs from platform to platform when developing Notes applications.
