Care, Power, Information Alexander Stigl, 2019-12-05 This book is a critique and provincialization of Western social science and Global Northern academia by the author of The Digital Coloniality of Power It exposes shared colonial and extractive rationalities and histories of research higher education digitalization and bioeconomy while proposing in the idea of BluesCollarship a sketch for an alternative culture of worlding and commoning knowledge work and for making care matter in research and higher education In a discourse analysis and provincialization of research and higher education a tradition of elitist White Collaredness in academia and in the social sciences in particular is criticized and an alternative attitude towards the production transfer and use of knowledge BluesCollarship is proposed The latter is rooted in a different idea of what infrastructure is and in practices of decoloniality Noting the current political climate of propaganda and populism the persistence of social inequalities as well as of racism and misogyny it is proposed that how people give warrant for knowledge claims should be reviewed under different terms A coherent theme is that there is a genealogical root for current neo extractive and neo colonial rationalities in the Athenian idea of oikos which conflates family household and property In taking a distinctly writerly approach rather than giving ready made answers the book aims at permanently provoking readers at every turn to think further as well as before and beyond what is written but to do so in thinking together with Others Thus the book addresses scholars and students from across the social sciences who seek challenges to established ways of thinking in academia without simply replacing one canon for another This book is for those who think of themselves as knowledge and culture laborers in this age of precarization who seek to replace the university and cognitive capitalism with a pluriversity and an infrastructure built on knowledge and culture as fundamental values
