A Sourcebook for English Lyric Poetry John Tomarchio, 2023-03-24 The great poems selected are arranged in five divisions according to their meters as a measure intrinsic to them rather than to epochal divisions of the history of literature The paradigmatic example of this is the classical English sonnet Although the Sourcebook arranges five centuries of English lyric poems according to five metrical modes there is also an index of first lines by poet provided as well taken from back cover

The Waste Land T. S. Eliot, 2024-02-03 The Waste Land is a modernist poem written by T S Eliot first published in 1922 It is considered one of the most important and influential poems of the 20th century The poem is known for its complex structure rich allusions and exploration of various themes including disillusionment cultural decay and the search for spiritual renewal in a post World War I world

The Universal Deep Structure of Modern Poetry John A.F. Hopkins, 2020-04-02 With something of a poetry renaissance currently under way worldwide there is now more than ever a need for a solidly based methodology for interpreting poems something more empirical than traditional lit crit approaches and something more linguistically informed than the version of postmodernism rampant in certain Anglophone universities The latter approach which tends to allow the individual reader to do what he/she likes with a poetic text is inadequate to interpret modernist poetry whose English language precursors may be found in the late Romantics its pioneers were already writing in France as early as 1840 What is so different about the modernists Most importantly their works are monumental in that they are strongly resistant to deconstruction Contributing to this resistance is the fact that they are built around two deep level propositions each of which generates a set of indirectly signifying images sharing the same internal structure but having a different vocabulary Thus they do not signify according to linear narrative but according to these propositions and the relation between them which may be reconstructed by a careful comparison of images on the textual surface Every text as subject sign refers to an intertextual object sign which is usually another poem but may also be a film or other form of art Mediating between these two signs is their reader constructed interpretant which completes the semiotic triad As this book shows the novelty of this sign is thrown into relief by the contrast it makes with a lexical counterpart from the reader s experience which differs from the interpretant in structure The book s inclusion of French and Japanese as well as English poems shows that deep level signifying mechanisms may well be universal with considerable research and pedagogical implications
