Postcommunist Welfare States Linda J. Cook,2013-07-02 In the early 1990s the countries of the former Soviet Bloc faced an urgent need to reform the systems by which they delivered broad basic social welfare to their citizens Inherited systems were inefficient and financially unsustainable Linda J Cook here explores the politics and policy of social welfare from 1990 to 2004 in the Russian Federation Poland Hungary Belarus and Kazakhstan Most of these countries she shows tried to institute reforms based on a liberal paradigm of reduced entitlements and subsidies means testing and privatization But these proposals provoked opposition from pro welfare interests and the politics of negotiating change varied substantially from one political arena to another In Russia for example liberalizing reform was blocked for a decade Only as Vladimir Putin rose to power did the country change its inherited welfare system Cook finds that the impact of economic pressures on welfare was strongly mediated by domestic political factors including the level of democratization and balance of pro and anti reform political forces Postcommunist welfare politics throughout Russia and Eastern Europe she shows are marked by the large role played by bureaucratic welfare stakeholders who were left over from the communist period and in weak states by the development of informal processes in social sectors
