Crime Prevention Studies R. V. G. Clarke, 1996 Transit Crime and Sexual Violence in Cities Vania

Ceccato, Anastasia Loukaitou-Sideris, 2020-05-17 How cities are planned and designed has a major impact on individuals mobility and safety If individuals feel unsafe in public transportation or on the way to it they may avoid certain routes or particular times of the day This is problematic since research has also found that in some cities especially those in the Global South a large percentage of women are transit captives Namely they have relatively less access to non public forms of transportation and are therefore especially reliant on public transport This issue is important not only because it affects people s safety but also because it influences the long term sustainability of a city In a sustainable city safety guarantees the ability to move freely for everyone and provides a wider sense of place attachment Transit Crime and Sexual Violence in Cities examines the evidence of victimization in transit environments in countries around the world exploring individuals feelings of perceived safety or lack thereof and the necessary improvements that can make transit safer and hence cities more sustainable The book s contributions are grounded in theories at the crossroads of several disciplines such as environmental criminology architecture and design urban planning geography psychology gender and LGBTQI studies transportation and law enforcement International case studies include Los Angeles Vancouver Stockholm London Paris S o Paulo Mexico City Bogot Tokyo Guangzho Melbourne and Lagos among others Handbook of Public Transport Research Graham Currie, 2021-04-30 Providing a comprehensive overview and analysis of the latest research in the growing field of public transport studies this Handbook looks at the impact of urbanisation and the growth of mega cities on public transport Chapters examine the significant challenges facing the field that require new and original solutions including congestion and environmental relief and the social equity objectives that justify public transport in cities Crime in Mass Transit provide strategies to address the diverse safety needs of users The study employs a mixed methods approach including field inspections analysis of official data questionnaire surveys and interviews These data sources are analysed using statistical techniques GIS mapping and regression modelling Building on these findings the book also critically examines how future railway station designs are currently being planned to enhance accessibility and safety This book answers the following questions Why are certain station environments perceived as more unsafe than others even though fewer crimes are committed there Why do different groups of travelers differ about victimization and safety From a governance perspective what would make these places safer What are the patterns of victimization of vulnerable groups such as women and individuals with disabilities The findings have international resonance as this book demonstrates the connection between safety and sustainability offering useful insights and recommendations for researchers practitioners and policymakers committed to shaping safer more inclusive transit environments

Evidence-Based Crime Prevention David P. Farrington, Doris Layton MacKenzie, Lawrence W. Sherman, Brandon C. Welsh, 2003-09-02 Crime prevention policy and practice is on the whole far from objective Instead of being based on scientific evidence the crime policy agenda is seemingly driven by political ideology anecdotal evidence and programme trends Evidence Based Crime Prevention seeks to change this by comprehensively and rigorously assessing the existing scientific knowledge on the effectiveness of crime prevention programmes internationally Reviewing more than 600 scientific evaluations of programmes intended to prevent crime in settings such as families schools labour markets and communities this book grades programmes on their scientific validity using the scientific methods scale This collection which brings together contributions from leading researchers in the field of crime prevention will provide policy makers researchers and community leaders with an understandable source of information about what works what does not work and what is promising in preventing crime

The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology Gerben Bruinsma, Shane D. Johnson, 2018 The study of how the environment local geography and physical locations influence crime has a long history that stretches across many research traditions These include the neighborhood effects approach developed in the 1920s the criminology of place and a newer approach that attends to the perception of crime in communities Aided by new technologies and improved data reporting in recent decades research in environmental criminology has developed rapidly within each of these approaches Yet research in the subfield remains fragmented and competing theories are rarely examined together The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology takes a unique approach and synthesizes the contributions of existing methods to better integrate the subfield as a whole Gerben J N Bruinsma and Shane D Johnson have assembled a cast of top scholars to provide an in depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime affect the environment and impact individual or group behavior The contributors address how changes in the environment global connectivity and technology provide more criminal opportunities and new ways of committing old crimes They also explore how crimes committed in countries with distinct cultural practices like China and West Africa might lead to different spatial patterns of crime This is a state of the art compendium on environmental criminology that reflects the diverse research and theory developed across the western world Making Public Places

Safer Brandon C. Welsh, David P. Farrington, 2009-11-04 The United Kingdom has more than 4.2 million public closed circuit television CCTV cameras one for every fourteen citizens Across the United States hundreds of video surveillance systems are being installed in town centers public transportation facilities and schools at a cost exceeding 100 million annually And now other Western countries have begun to experiment with CCTV to prevent crime in public places In light of this expansion and the associated public expenditure as well as pressing concerns about privacy rights there is an acute need for an evidence based approach to inform policy and practice Drawing on the highest quality research criminologists Brandon C Welsh and David P Farrington assess the effectiveness and social costs of not only CCTV but also of other important surveillance methods to prevent crime in public space such as improved street lighting security guards place managers and defensible space Importantly the book goes beyond the question of Does it work and examines the specific conditions and contexts under which these surveillance methods may have an effect on crime as well as the mechanisms that bring about a reduction in crime At a time when cities need cost effective methods to fight crime and the public gradually awakens to the burdens of sacrificing their privacy and civil rights for security Welsh and Farrington provide this timely and reliable guide to the most effective and non invasive uses of surveillance to make public places safer from crime
