Preventing Transmission of HIV: A Biological and Medical Perspective*

MYRON S. COHEN, M.D.

IN MY COMMENTS I will summarize our understanding of the transmission of HIV, and describe how this knowledge has been used to develop prevention strategies—many of which have already been used successfully.

The probability of transmission of HIV depends on the route. HIV-contaminated blood used for a transfusion is still a problem in some resource poor countries, and causes infection more than 90% of the time. In contrast, someone stuck with a contaminated needle has only a 1/300 chance of acquiring HIV. The chance of HIV transmission during childbirth is about 30%. The chances of acquiring HIV from sexual exposure is highly variable, but is often very inefficient, so that dozens or even hundreds of episodes of intercourse appear to be required for transmission to occur. This ought to be surprising since HIV is first and foremost an STD! More than 70% of HIV is sexually transmitted.

Given the relative inefficiency of the sexual transmission of HIV, how can we explain the magnitude of the HIV epidemic? Other factors must define the epidemic. These include the duration of time a person remains contagious, and the number of people exposed. Indeed, we can multiply these factors together to predict the spread of HIV. Thus, the ferocity of the AIDS epidemic is not because the virus is so easily transmitted. Rather, it is because of the many years that infected people remain sexually active, and because of the large number of different sexual encounters that might occur, particularly where commercial sex work is common.

Now let's look more closely at sexual transmission of HIV by both the infectiousness of the HIV carrier, and the susceptibility of the person exposed.

Infectiousness of HIV is determined by the amount of virus in the blood or genital secretions, and special features of the viral swarm which can render the virus either more or less contagious. Higher concentrations of HIV in blood and genital secretions greatly increase the chance for HIV transmission. Many experts believe that the type of virus found in Sub-Saharan Africa, which is different than the virus found in the United States, is more contagious. The HIV virus in China, as you will hear from Dr. Shao Yiming, is unfortunately caused by a virus similar to that found in Sub-Saharan Africa.

Not everyone is equally susceptible to HIV. Indeed, here are three kinds of resistance to HIV: hereditary, innate, and acquired. Hereditary resistance is observed in about 1/100 Caucasians who have cells that cannot be readily infected with the virus because of a genetic Preventing AIDS Ralph J. DiClemente, John L. Peterson, 2013-06-29 Public health has a legacy of neglect regarding social and behavioral research Too often prompted by technical and scientific progress we have ignored even marginalized the vital human element in health thinking and practice Thus for example while family planning programs focused on providing a choice among safe and effective contraceptive methods a supremely worthy goal the central issue of sexuality and sexual behavior was generally neglected Similarly the enormous and important efforts to develop rapid and reliable diagnostic and treatment methods for sexually transmitted diseases helped divert attention away from the crucial issues of sexual practice In short we seem to have difficulty addressing the fundamental behaviors including sex drug taking and other intoxications and violence that are central to the major causes of preventable morbidity disability and premature mortality in the world today Our collective reluctance to examine and understand ourselves is also expressed in the oft repeated pipedream that scientific progress will take care of the HIV AIDS pandemic by delivering a preventive vaccine an effective cure or both Yet even a cursory glance at the relationship between scientific technical progress and health shows that meeting the scientific challenges is only one step toward effective application of the vaccine or drug It is typical not atypical that hepatitis B vaccine is only now becoming relatively freely available to large populations in the developing world more than a decade after the vaccine s licensure

Women at Risk: Issues in the Primary Prevention of AIDS Ann O'Leary,Loretta Sweet Jemmott,1995-09-30 Women comprise the group that is rapidly becoming infected with HIV and while some prevention efforts show signs of promise many unresolved issues remain This pivotal volume presents up to date research findings offering an in depth look into issues germane to preventing AIDS in women Eminent researchers and health care providers focus on specific groups of women based on ethnicity relationship factors and behavior

Health of HIV Infected People Ronald Ross Watson,2015-04-29 Health of HIV Infected People Food Nutrition and Lifestyle Without Antiretroviral Drugs defines the supportive roles of bioactive foods exercise and dietary supplements on the health of HIV infected people who do not have access to resources or those who choose not to utilize antiretroviral drugs Approaches such as the application of traditional herbs and foods are given careful definition by experts who define the risks and benefits of such practices within this important context Readers learn how to treat or ameliorate the effects of chronic retroviral disease using readily available cheap foods and dietary supplements Ultimately this work delivers a current concise scientific appraisal of the efficacy of key foods nutrients dietary plants and behavioral changes in preventing and improving the quality of life of HIV infected infants and adults who are not undergoing antiretroviral therapy Covers the role of nutrients in the prevention and treatment of HIV induced physiological changes Delivers important coverage on the relationship between HIV infection and infant feeding practice along with public health policy recommendations in social and cultural context Provides coverage of fitness and exercise regimens physical activity and behavioral and lifestyle changes on HIV infected individuals Explores food and treatment of obesity diabetes and cardiovascular disease in HIV infected patients including those without antiretroviral therapeutic treatment

Global HIV/AIDS David Gootnick,2008-08 The Pres Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief PEPFAR provides assistance for combating HIV AIDS in 15 focus countries and elsewhere with global targets for prevention treatment and care The U S Leadership Against HIV AIDS TB and Malaria Act of 2003 which authorizes the 15 billion program contains directives to guide the allocation of this funding The act expires in Sept 2008 The Pres intends to ask Congress to authorize 30 billion for these efforts for the next 5 years In 2007 the Institute of Med recommended eliminating the directives This report describes 1 the views of HIV AIDS experts on these directives 2 an alternative approach to allocating funds and 3 potential challenges related to this approach Charts and tables

apr 6 2016 32 hall effect sensor hall effect sensor hall effect sensors are devices which are activated by an external magnetic field the output voltage called the hall voltage V_H of the basic hall element is directly proportional to the strength of the magnetic field passing through the semiconductor material output V_H output voltage can be quite small only a few
