Preventive Parenting with Love, Encouragement and Limits. By Thomas J. Dishion and Scott G. Patterson. Eugene, OR: Castalia Publishing Co. 1996. Pp. 126.

The second child of a friend of mine, a four-year-old girl, stays up till the early hours of the morning without seeming to need much sleep either at night or during the day. Her mother, a behavioral pediatrician, is able to handle her child's atypical sleeping routine very well although I suspect that sometimes she would like her child to go to bed somewhat earlier. Other parents, who do not have her training in behavioral pediatrics, may be able to develop some of her expertise in dealing with toddlers and pre-school-age children by reading and completing the exercises presented by Dishion and Patterson in their wonderful little book on Preventive Parenting. In this book they have used a step-by-step approach to explain "how to handle everyday problems, promote the wellbeing of your children, and create a positive family atmosphere" (p. xi). The authors believe that well-adjusted children need a balanced mixture of parent's love, encouragement of positive efforts and behaviors, and the setting of consistent limits to preempt misbehavior.

The book has eight short chapters, each accompanied by a home practice activity. In the introduction the authors tell us that preventive parenting deals with both the short-term and long-term effects of parenting. They believe that focusing on short-term goals may set the stage for their children to engage in problem behaviors through accidental training or negative reinforcement. They also discuss what parents can do when events occur over which they have little direct control. Through positive reframing of the problem or event, parents can teach their children more positive ways of behaving. Finally, they discuss one of the most common problems of young parents—their lack of self-control when their child engages in problem behaviors. Parents sometimes lose their own sense of control when trying to teach the child self-control!

Preventive Parenting With Love Encouragement And Limits The Preschool Years Paperback:

Preventive Parenting with Love, Encouragement, and Limits Thomas J. Dishion, Scot G. Patterson, 1996 Raising Cooperative Kids Marion Sue Forgatch, Gerald R. Patterson, Tim Friend, 2017-01-01 Not since Dr Spock's The Common Sense Book of Baby and Child Care published in 1946 has there been such a comprehensive book on parenting. Raising Cooperative Kids focuses on children from toddlerhood to early teens, picking up where Spock's book leaves off. Patterson, who was one of the leaders of the behavioral movement in psychology, gets straight to the heart of the power struggle that begins when children learn to speak and interact with others. This fight for power is at the core of every tantrum and argument that will ever occur between parents and children. Together, Patterson and Forgatch give parents the formula to overcome this struggle and make children want to cooperate. Their parenting techniques tap deep-rooted human instincts, making them universal and easy to use no matter where you live or how your family is structured. Developed over 40 years of practice and tested in clinical studies, these techniques enable parents to teach their children new behaviors, change unwanted behaviors, and reduce family conflicts. Unlike most parenting books, the focus is first on changing the behaviors of parents and giving them proven tools to bring out the best in their children. Specific guidance is included for issues ranging from how to share the bathroom during the morning rush to what to do when a child misbehaves. The authors also remind us of the importance of play. Enjoying each other and sharing time and activities together is the cornerstone of a happy family. Raising Cooperative Kids is the only parenting book you will ever need. Resources in Education, 1997 Helping the Noncompliant Child Robert J. McMahon, Rex L. Forehand, 2015-08-08 This popular treatment manual presents an empirically validated program for teaching parents to manage noncompliance in 3 to 8 year olds.
