Excerpt from The Complaint or Night Thoughts There are three distinct stages in the development of the faculties at which the taste undergoes a perceptible modification correspondent to the progress of the intellectual character The first stage is when the imagination begins to exert its newly awakened perceptions and the whole scene of mental vision presents a field of discovery and wonder Then all that is vast or wild or distant or grand it matters not how improbable the fiction or how remote from human feelings and human interests so that it is decked out in the Vivid colours of romance is seized and appropriated by the mind with emotions keen as they are indefinite and laid up as the elements of future hopes and day dreams The passions succeed the imagination in the order of development as the child begins to enlarge into Incipient manhood while the delusions of romance fade around him new instincts new wants are awakened and he begins to feel himself alone The taste participating in this change Demands excitement of a different kind The softer colouring of rural nature the gentler accents of tender or of heroic sentiment scenes of beauty instead of tales of wonder now have their turn in pleasing and emotions of enthusiasm tinged perhaps with devotional or melancholic feeling swell and agitate the breast The agitations of passion subside as the objects of life acquire distinctness and as the sun of intellect approaching its zenith shortens the shadows which they cast Then according to the direction which the character assumes either the affections of the heart undertake the conquest of the imagination and the taste becomes disciplined to reality or the selfishness of our nature becomes all exerted in the toil of worldly acquisition and neither the poetry of fable nor the poetry of life can please any longer About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Complaint and Consolation; Or, Night Thoughts on Life, Death, and Immortality, to Which is Added, The Force of Religion Young Edward 1683-1765,2023-07-18 The Complaint and Consolation is a
