

A photograph of a worship band performing on a stage. The scene is dimly lit with a strong blue light wash. On the left, a man in a brown jacket stands at a podium, speaking into a microphone. Behind him, four other band members are visible: a woman on the left, a woman in the center holding a microphone, a man behind her, and another woman on the right. The background is a plain wall with a screen at the top. The foreground shows the silhouettes of the audience's heads.

Hymn-Canticles for the Church Year Charles M Mountain,1997-08-01 This book is a successful attempt to provide additional avenues for the scriptures to find a home in human hearts In this volume Mountain supplies at least one scripture paraphrase and or theme hymn to go along with existing hymn tunes for each Sunday and major festival in the Revised Common Lectionary for all three cycles The hymn canticles in this collection may be used as hymns in their own right or as lyrical substitutes for the scripture readings It is the author s opinion that these are most effective as the hymn that either precedes or follows the sermon or as hymns to underscore the meaning of other special events in worship In addition to chapters for cycles A B and C there is an index for hymn canticles listed by books of the Bible an index for theme hymns and an extensive bibliography Charles Mountain has given us new liturgical thoughts for some wonderful old hymn tunes Such new thoughts give us pause to think anew about our relationship with our heavenly Father Certainly these new thoughts tied together with familiar melodies will be helpful and meaningful for congregation in our modern setting David W Peters Pastor Messiah Lutheran Church Denver CO
