

Brief Guide to APA Format for Citations, Quotes, and References

These guidelines were taken from the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (Fifth Edition). Examples are shown in boldface. This is not a complete guide to APA style, see the manual for more details. A more extensive on-line APA guide is available at <http://www.uwsp.edu/psych/apa4b.htm>. Citations

(always included author(s) last name(s), year, and page numbers)

Citations should be used whenever any information you read in a source is included in your paper. Citations must be used even though the information was written in your own words; you must give an author credit for an idea or finding. General knowledge (e.g., that George Washington was the first president of the United States) does not require a citation. When in doubt about whether information is general knowledge, use a citation.

Rogers (1994) measured simple reaction times.

Simple reaction times are about 150 ms., on average (Rogers, 1994).

- Old works where original date is known but source used is more recent (in the reference list give the reference to the source you used)

James (1890/1983)

- Very old works without an original date that have been translated

(Aristotle, trans. 1931)

- Citation of a source's citation – If you want to cite some information that was cited in a source you read but you don't have access to the cited source do the following. Avoid this practice, if possible.

Jones (1985) found a high incidence of drug use among high school students (cited in Smith, 1994).

In the above example, Jones made the finding that you read in a book by Smith and you don't have access to the original source by Jones.
