Y. Evening Post.*

Do you know that the chances that you would not be here yourself, but someone else, are over a hundred million to one? Do you know that if a certain local politician in the State of Washington had not got puffed one day in 1910, there might have been no World War? Do you know that the United States would today be a small country surrounded between the Appalachians and the sea if a whole series of quite accidental and wholly unrelated events had not taken place?

What is this mysterious, intangible, unpredictable element in all life that moulds the destinies of races, nations and individuals? No one knows—but we call it luck or chance. It
