UNESCO Biosphere Reserves BRs are designated areas in geographical regions of global socio ecological significance This definitive book shows their global relevance and contribution to environmental protection biocultural diversity and education Initiated in the 1970s as part of UNESCO s Man and Biosphere MAB Programme BRs share a set of common objectives to support and demonstrate a balance between biodiversity conservation sustainable development and research The world s 701 BRs form an international intergovernmental network to support the aims of sustainability science but this purpose has not always been widely understood In three distinct sections the book starts by outlining the origins of BRs and the MAB Programme showing how they contribute to advancing sustainable development The second section documents the evolution of BRs around the world including case studies from each of the five UNESCO world regions Each case study demonstrates how conservation sustainable development and the role of scientific research have been interpreted locally The book concludes by discussing thematic lessons to help understand the challenges and opportunities associated with sustainability science providing a unique platform from which lessons can be learned This includes how concepts become actions on the ground and how ideas can be taken up across sites at differing scales This book will be of great interest to professionals engaged in conservation and sustainable development NGOs policy makers and advanced students in environmental management ecology sustainability science environmental anthropology and geography      Annual Report - Canada Council Canada Council,1972      Info MAB ,1993      The Plant Diversity of Malesia P. Baas,K. Kalkman,R. Geesink,2012-12-06 Although the only publication with a realistic claim to the title The plant diver sity of Malesia is Flora Malesiana itself we have hesitatingly chosen this title for the present proceedings volume Past present and future work on the Flora Malesiana project was the subject of a successful symposium held in August 1989 This book contains only a selection of the papers presented at that meet ing yet it covers a much greater diversity of themes than just the inventory of botanical diversity It even goes beyond the boundaries of the vast Flora Malesi ana region in several of its chapters The role of the founder of the Flora Malesiana Project Professor C G G J van Steenis repeatedly recurs in several chapters not only as director of and contributor to the project but also as a pioneer in the fields of Malesian vege tation conservation and biogeography and as an enlightened systematist whose ideas and practical recommendations for taxonomic delimitation still largely apply Botanical information made available in regional and local floras is of vital im portance for applications such as the exploitation of natural forests on a sus tainable yield basis for establishing gene banks for the benefit of agriculture forestry and horticulture and not in the least for nature conservation Several chapters are devoted to these themes Floristic studies are also at the basis of the biogeographical essays and vegetation studies included in this book      Full of Life German MAB National Committee,2004-09-10 Biosphere reserves serve in some ways as living laboratories for testing and demonstrating integrated management of land water and biodiversity With this publication the national MAB committee of Germany gives a detailed presentation and description of the Biosphere Reserves of Germany Large-scale Livestock Grazing Harald Plachter,Ulrich Hampicke,2010-02-02 One of the main objectives of nature conservation in Europe is to protect valuable cultural landscapes characterized by a mixture of open habitats and hedges trees and patchy woodland semi open landscapes The development of these landscapes during the past decades has been characterized by an ongoing intensification of land use on the one hand and an increasing number of former meadows and pastures becoming fallow as a result of changing economic conditions on the other hand Since species adapted to open and semi open landscapes contribute to biodiversity in Europe in a major way this development is of great concern to nature conservation In several countries largescale nature adapted pastoral systems have been recognized as one solution to this problem These systems could offer an alternative to industrial livestock raising and keep a high biodiversity on the landscape level Against the background of livestock diseases such as BSE and Foot and Mouth Disease and the efforts to reform the Common Agricultural Policy in the EU by changing the criteria for agricultural subsidies these concepts gain particular significance They could also represent an alternative to the established costly habitat management tools World Who Is Who and Does What in Environment and Conservation Nicholas

Gubbay,2012-12-06 Marine protected areas MPAs have an important role in marine conserva tion programmes around the world Although most have been established relatively recently when compared with protected areas on land there is considerable expertise on their identification setting up and management Some techniques have been adapted from those used on land Others are novel and unique to marine conservation The chapters in this book give an insight into this fast developing field where experiment and innovation work alongside techniques which have been tried and tested The guiding principles behind key stages in the setting up and management of MPAs are described and case studies illustrate how they have worked While it is most encouraging to read about the successes the case studies also point to difficulties which have been encountered Not all of the examples are new or recent but together they illustrate what is happening in this field

Plant Genetic Conservation Nigel Maxted, B.V. Ford-Lloyd, J.G. Hawkes, 2013-12-01 The recent development of ideas on biodiversity conservation was already being considered almost three quarters of a century ago for crop plants and the wild species related to them by the Russian geneticist N Vavilov He was undoubtedly the first scientist to understand the importance for humankind of conserving for utilization the genetic diversity of our ancient crop plants and their wild relatives from their centres of diversity His collections showed various traits of adaptation to environmental extremes and biotypes of crop diseases and pests which were unknown to most plant breeders in the first quarter of the twentieth century Later in the 1940s 1960s scientists began to realize that the pool of genetic diversity known to Vavilov and his colleagues was beginning to disappear Through the replacement of the old primitive and highly diverse land races by uniform modern varieties created by plant breeders the crop gene pool was being eroded The genetic diversity of wild species was equally being threatened by human activities over exploitation habitat destruction or fragmentation competition resulting from the introduction of alien species or varieties changes and intensification of land use environmental pollution and possible climate change

Extended Curriculum Programmes Tennyson Mgutshini, 2022-04-30 The introduction of ECPs in South African Universities is seen by many as South Africa's key strategy for addressing the problem of poor patterns of student success and has its basis on the uncontested acceptance that an extended study duration may be necessary to bring some categories of learners to a level of parity with the readiness expectations of their course of study Even so this transformative strategic imperative has been plagued by a range of challenges that include poor systems readiness poor selection mechanisms in the identification of ECP students poor numeracy and literacy amongst students and indifferent teacher involvement in ECPs This volume offers a rare insight into many of the above recognised challenges and in so doing provides critical matter for thought for educators within the higher education sector

Aquatic Birds in the Trophic Web of Lakes Joseph J.

Kerekes,2012-12-06 Birds are an integral part of most freshwater ecosystems lakes rivers wetlands but their role in the trophic dynamics of these water bodies has often been overlooked As a conspicuous part of the biota of water bodies aquatic birds are indicators of their trophic state both in terms of species composition quality as well as occupancy and breeding quantity Birds may also influence the trophic state of a water body by importing nutrients e g resident or migrating birds feeding on adjacent watersheds or the sea Because of anthropogenic activities predation or their mobility birds may not utilize otherwise suitable aquatic habitat These factors complicate the relationship between aquatic bird production and the trophic status of habitats As a consequence the role of aquatic birds in freshwater ecosystems has usually been ignored This volume contains a wide range of papers selected from those presented at the symposium and reviewed

The Female

Reproductive Tract Microbiome - Gatekeeper for Sexual and Reproductive Health Mariya Ivanova Petrova,Jo-Ann S.

Passmore,Lindi Masson,2023-03-21 An optimal female reproductive tract FRT microbiome represents a cornerstone for successful reproductive and sexual health Although understanding the link between the microbiota and our health is the focus of a growing number of research programs and research has advanced in the last decade the FRT microbiome remains relatively poorly defined This is despite it being one of the most critical factors impacting fertility and the health of the future generation Important gaps in our knowledge remain about women specific microbial niches such as the lower FRT The vaginal microbiome of healthy women is almost exclusively dominated by Lactobacillus species making these species synonymous with vaginal health Largely thanks to their capacity to produce high levels of lactic acid lactobacilli are thought to inhibit most invading bacterial and viral pathogens Nonetheless the dogma that all Lactobacillus species are key beneficial species in the vaginal niche has been questioned based on the association with disease for some of the major players in the niche for example L iners particularly in non European or Caucasian cohorts Further the ability of other mostly anaerobic species besides lactobacilli to maintain similar homeostasis in the vaginal niche raises the question of what we define as optimal or healthy vaginal microbiota Answering this question is essential since a non optimal or dysbiotic vaginal microbiome has been linked to the acquisition of sexually transmitted infections STIs infertility and adverse pregnancy outcomes To confront these healthcare challenges we should be able to distinguish between an optimal and non optimal microbiome With the advance of sequence based technologies as well as other omics methodologies including metaproteomics metabolomics and culturomics we are now able to begin to correlate the presence as well as the activities of specific organisms and microbial communities with health or disease However we are only beginning to understand the complexity of interactions between bacterial community members with each other and the human host A better understanding of these relationships within this specialized environmental niche and in relation to female sexual and reproductive health is critical for the development of novel diagnostics and therapeutics to create and maintain an optimal FRT microbiome
