Possessing the Past 中國藝術史, Wen Fong, James C. Y. Watt, 1996 Only two major exhibitions from the fabled Chinese Palace Museum collections have been seen in the West the first in London in 1935 36 and the second in the United States in 1961 62 These two exhibitions provided an extraordinary stimulus to the study of Chinese culture revolutionized Asian art studies in the West and opened the eyes of the public to the artistic traditions of Chinese civilization Possessing the Past Treasures from the National Palace Museum Taipei is the publication that accompanies the third great exhibition of Chinese masterworks to travel to the West Written by scholars of both Chinese and Western cultural backgrounds and conceived as a cultural history the book tells the story of Chinese art from its foundations in the Bronze Age and the first empires through the rich diversity of art produced during the Sung Yuan Ming and Ch'ing dynasties contrasting China's absolutist political structure with the humanism of its artistic and moral philosophy Synthesizing scholarship of the past three decades the authors present not only the historical and cultural significance of individual works of art and analyses of their aesthetic content but a reevaluation of the cultural dynamics of Chinese history reflecting a fundamental shift in the study of Chinese art from a focus on documentation and connoisseurship to an emphasis on the cultural significance of the visual arts National treasures passed down from dynasty to dynasty the works of art that now form the collection of the National Palace Museum Taipei originally constituted the personal collection of the Ch'ienlung emperor who ruled China from 1736 to 1795 Two centuries after Ch'ienlung ascended the dragon throne when the Japanese invaded China in 1937 the nearly 10 000 masterworks of painting and calligraphy and more than 600 000 objects and rare books and documents which had earlier been moved from Peking to Nanking following the Japanese occupation of Manchuria in 1931 were packed in crates and evacuated to caves near the wartime capital Chungking It was not until after World War II that the crated treasures were moved to their present home in Taiwan where today they represent a major portion of China's artistic and cultural legacy

Possessing the Past Wen C. Fong, James C. Y. Watt, 1997-09-01 Only two major exhibitions from the fabled Chinese Palace Museum collections have been seen in the West the first in London in 1935 36 and the second in the United States in 1961 62 These two exhibitions provided an extraordinary stimulus to the study of Chinese culture revolutionized Asian art studies in the West and opened the eyes of the public to the artistic traditions of Chinese civilization Possessing the Past Treasures from the National Palace Museum Taipei is the publication that accompanies the third great exhibition of Chinese masterworks to travel to the West Written by scholars of both Chinese and Western cultural backgrounds and conceived as a cultural history the book tells the story of Chinese art from its foundations in the Bronze Age and the first empires through the rich diversity of art produced during the Sung Y an Ming and Ch ing dynasties contrasting China s absolutist political structure with the humanism of its artistic and moral philosophy Synthesizing scholarship of the past three decades the authors present not only the historical and cultural significance of individual works of art and analyses of their aesthetic content but a reevaluation of the cultural dynamics of Chinese history reflecting a fundamental shift in the study of Chinese art from a focus on documentation and connoisseurship to an emphasis on the cultural significance of the visual arts

Emperor Qianlong's Hidden Treasures Nicole T. C. Chiang, 2019-08-15 In this stunning reassessment Nicole T C Chiang argues that the famous Qianlong art collection is really the collection of the imperial household in the Qianlong reign The distinction is significant because it strips away the modern Eurocentric preconceptions that have led scholars to misconstrue the size of the collection the role of nationalism in its formation the distinction between art and artifact and the actual involvement of the emperor in assembling the collection No one interested in Chinese art will be able to ignore the ramifications of this important study Emperor Qianlong s Hidden Treasures Reconsidering the Collection of the Qing Imperial Household argues that the size of the collection was actually smaller than previously stated Moreover the idea that the collection put the whole of the empire on display and thereby promoted political unity does not square with the reality that most of the collection was hidden away Instead the collection was primarily for the emperor s gaze alone Chiang further explains that the collection was largely the product of work done by many specialists working at the Qianlong court noting that the emperor often assumed a more supervisory role Preliminary drawings patterns models and prototypes of the items made in the imperial workshops also formed an important part of the collection as they served to establish standardized models used to run the imperial household The collection was thus both broader and narrower than previously stated Chiang has identified many misguided assumptions about the Qing imperial collection In their place she proposes a new definition of an imperial collection that does not give primacy to art objects This bold revisionist thesis may be controversial but it is important and deserves to be read widely for this exact reason Dorothy Ko Barnard College Columbia University Chiang makes a new argument which will contribute to the literature on Qing imperial art She shows that a distinction should be made between the Qianlong emperor s activities in commissioning objects from the palace workshop and his activities in accumulating assessing and cataloguing objects that went into what she calls the imperial household collection This work will attract wide attention from scholars in art history Evelyn S Rawski University of Pittsburgh
