Reel Conversations Candid Interviews With Films Foremost Directors:

Reel Conversations George Hickenlooper, 1991 Modernist America Richard Pells, 2011-03-29 America's global cultural impact is largely seen as one-sided with critics claiming that it has undermined other countries' languages and traditions. But contrary to popular belief, the cultural relationship between the United States and the world has been reciprocal, says Richard Pells. The United States not only plays a large role in shaping international entertainment and tastes; it is also a consumer of foreign intellectual and artistic influences. Pells reveals how the American artists, novelists, composers, jazz musicians, and filmmakers who were part of the Modernist movement were greatly influenced by outside ideas and techniques. People across the globe found familiarities in American entertainment, resulting in a universal culture that has dominated the twentieth and twenty-first centuries and fulfilled the aim of the Modernist movement to make the modern world seem more intelligible. Modernist America brilliantly explains why George Gershwin's music, Cole Porter's lyrics, Jackson Pollock's paintings, Bob Fosse's choreography, Marlon Brando's acting, and Orson Welles's storytelling were so influential, and why these and other artists and entertainers simultaneously represent both an American and a modern global culture. The New

Scorsese and Robert De Niro Andrew J. Rausch, 2023-06-14 In 1973, early in their careers, Martin Scorsese and Robert De Niro collaborated for the first time. Over the next few decades, they worked together on seven more movies, many of which brought them both acclaim and awards. And while successful director and actor pairings have occurred throughout the history of film, few have fashioned so many works of enduring value as these two artists. In little more than two decades, Scorsese and De Niro produced eight features, including the classics Taxi Driver, Raging Bull, and GoodFellas. In The Films of Martin Scorsese and Robert De Niro, Andrew J. Rausch examines the creative output of this remarkable pair from their initial offering, Mean Streets, to their most recent film together, Casino. Rausch looks at their relationship as individual artists who worked together to create cinematic magic, as well as the friendship that was forged nearly 40 years ago. Drawing upon interviews and other sources, Rausch goes behind the scenes of their eight films, providing insight into their creative process and the enduring bond between them. Mean Streets and Raging Bulls Richard Martin, 2000-01-01 Classic film noir was Hollywood's dark cinema of crime and corruption a genre underpinned by a tone of existential cynicism which stripped bare the myth of the American Dream and offered a bleak nightmarish vision of a fragmented society that rhymed with many of the social realities of forties and fifties America Mean Streets and Raging Bulls explores how since its apparent demise in the late fifties the noir genre has been revitalized during the post studio era The book is divided into two sections In the first the evolution of film noir is contextualized in relation to both American cinema's industrial transformation and the post Depression history of the United States In the second the evolution of neo noir and its relation to classic film noir is illustrated by detailed reference to representative texts including Chinatown Roman Polanski 1974 Night Moves Arthur Penn 1975 Taxi Driver Martin Scorsese 1976 Blood Simple Joel and Ethan Coen 1984 After Hours Martin Scorsese 1985 Sea of Love Harold Becker 1989 Reservoir Dogs Quentin Tarantino 1992 and Romeo is Bleeding Peter Medak 1994

The Deer Hunter Brad

Prager,2023-09-07 Michael Cimino's The Deer Hunter was met with both critical and commercial success upon its release in 1978. However, it was also highly controversial and came to be seen as a powerful statement on the human cost of America's longest war and as a colonialist glorification of anti-Asian violence. Brad Prager's study of the film considers its significance as a war movie and contextualizes its critical reception. Drawing on an archive of contemporaneous materials as well as an in-depth analysis of the film's lighting, mise en scène, multiple cameras, and shifting depths of field, Prager examines how the film simultaneously presents itself as a work of cinematic realism while problematically blurring the lines between fact and fiction. While Cimino felt he had no responsibility to historical truth, depicting a highly stylized version of his own fantasies about the Vietnam War, Prager argues that The Deer Hunter's formal elements were used to bolster his troubling depictions of war and race. Finally, comparing the film with later depictions of US-led intervention such as Albert and Allen Hughes's Dead Presidents (1995) and Spike Lee's Da 5 Bloods (2020), Prager illuminates The Deer Hunter's major presumptions, blind spots, and omissions while also presenting a case for its classic status.

Ken Russell Barry Keith Grant,2024-08-15 In the 1970s British filmmaker Ken Russell (1927–2011) quickly gained a reputation as the enfant terrible of British cinema. His work, like the man himself, was regarded as flamboyant, excessive, and unrestrained. Inheriting and yet subverting the venerable mantle of British documentary, Russell did not fit comfortably in the context of a national cinema dominated by sober realism. His distinct style combined realism with fictional devices, often in audacious ways, to create the biographical docudrama. In Ken Russell: Interviews, the filmmaker discusses his colorful life and career, from his youth fascinated by movies to his early work in television, through his feature films and his retreat to home movies. Russell first drew notice in the early 1960s for a series of unorthodox biographical films about artists and composers. In these early television films, Russell was already exhibiting an unconventional approach to biography that combined historical fact, aesthetic interpretation, and outlandish personal vision. After the critical and commercial success of his adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's Women in Love, Russell continued to explore the related themes of art, sexuality, and music in The Music Lovers, The Boy Friend, Mahler, Tommy, and Lisztomania. His career foundered after Valentino, however, and he found it increasingly difficult to get funding. Toward the end of his career, Russell was restricted to making movies with his own equipment, using family and friends as actors, with virtually no budget. Throughout the ups and downs of his career, Russell alternately embraced and resented his characterization as an enfant terrible. While Russell's comments are often meant to provoke and shock, he is articulate when discussing his films, his approach to cinema, music, and composers, and of course his critics.

The Thing Jez Conolly,2014-01-07 Consigned to the deep freeze of critical and commercial reception upon its release in 1982, The Thing has bounced back spectacularly to become one of the most highly regarded productions from the 1980s Body Horror cycle of films, experiencing a wholesale and detailed reappraisal that has secured its place in the pantheon of modern cinematic horror. Thirty years on, and with a recent prequel reigniting interest, Jez Conolly looks back to the film's antecedents and to the changing nature of its reception and entertainment movies have gradually assumed a place among the arts Raymond Haberski's provocative and insightful book traces the trajectory of this evolution throughout the twentieth century from nickelodeon amusements to the age of the financial blockbuster Haberski begins by looking at the barriers to film's acceptance as an art form including the Chicago Motion Picture Commission hearings of 1918-1920 one of the most revealing confrontations over the use of censorship in the motion picture industry He then examines how movies overcame the stigma attached to popular entertainment through such watershed events as the creation of the Museum of Modern Art's Film Library in the 1920s The arguments between Pauline Kael and Andrew Sarris's heralded a golden age of criticism and Haberski focuses on the roles of Kael Sarris James Agee Roger Ebert and others in the creation of cinephilia Described by Susan Sontag as born of the conviction that cinema was an art unlike any other this love of cinema centered on coffee houses universities art theaters film festivals and of course foreign films The lively debates over the place of movies in American culture began to wane in the 1970s Haberski places the blame on the loss of cultural authority and on the increasing irrelevance of the meaning of art He concludes with a persuasive call for the re-emergence of a middle ground between art and entertainment something more complex ambiguous and vexing something worth thought
