

How To Write a Feature Article

Formulating Ideas

Having a good idea, and having lots of good ideas is difficult, but a writer has to rely on a constant stream of good ideas, which they generate themselves. A good tip is to keep ideas jotted down on postcards, filed away for future use, so that the cupboard is never bare.

Collecting and Filing Cuttings

One way of generating ideas is to constantly scan sources - magazines, papers, journals - for the germ of an idea. Anything you come across can be filed away for future use.

Subject Research

Once you have a clear idea of what you are going to write then, and only then, do you start the legwork. This may take the form at first of background research and reading. Whether you use all the material you find or not, it may help to lead you to other sources or to potential interviewees.

Interviewing

Most articles will carry some interview material. It is this which makes the article fresh and live, and which gives it authenticity. Too many writers see features as a platform for their own opinions. The very best articles listen to others talking.

Writing, Drafting and Editing

The process of drafting and polishing your article is a very personal one. Some people say they never plan first, some never rewrite, others do both. The computer has made it much easier to do planning, writing and editing all in one. But make no mistake - editing, sharpening, polishing your article, however you do it, is a very important stage.

Feature Articles by Lizzie R. Santos

There are many types of feature articles. Here are some of them.

Informative Features

Perhaps the most written, an informative feature presents information. It can include figures, graphs, charts, photos and any other valuable source/s of information related to the topic being written about. An informative feature article may be written in a
