Bruce Amstutz, 1996-12 Creating the New Man Yinghong Cheng, 2008-12-31 The idea of eliminating undesirable traits from human temperament to create a new man has been part of moral and political thinking worldwide for millennia During the Enlightenment European philosophers sought to construct an ideological framework for reshaping human nature But it was only among the communist regimes of the twentieth century that such ideas were actually put into practice on a nationwide scale In this book Yinghong Cheng examines three culturally diverse sociopolitical experiments the Soviet Union under Lenin and Stalin China under Mao and Cuba under Castro in an attempt to better understand the origins and development of the new man The book's fundamental concerns are how these communist revolutions strove to create a new morally and psychologically superior human being and how this task paralleled efforts to create a superior society To these ends it addresses a number of questions What are the intellectual roots of the new man concept How was this idealistic and utopian goal linked to specific political and economic programs How do the policies of these particular regimes based as they are on universal communist ideology reflect national and cultural traditions Cheng begins by exploring the origins of the idea of human perfectibility during the Enlightenment His discussion moves to other European intellectual movements and then to the creation of the Soviet Man the first communist new man in world history Subsequent chapters examine China's experiment with human nature starting with the nationalistic debate about a new national character at the turn of the twentieth century and Cuban perceptions of the new man and his role in propelling the revolution from a nationalist to a socialist and finally a communist movement The last chapter considers the global influence of the Soviet Chinese and Cuban experiments Creating the New Man contributes greatly to our understanding of how three very different countries and their leaders carried out problematic and controversial visions and programs It will be of special interest to students and scholars of world history and intellectual social and revolutionary history and also development studies and philosophy The Genesis of Chinese Communist Foreign Policy Michael H. Hunt, 1996 Is the Confucian tradition compatible with the Western understanding of human rights Are there fundamental human values regardless of cultural differences common to all peoples of all nations At this critical point in Communist China's history eighteen distinguished scholars address the role of Confucianism in dealing with questions of universal human rights The China Mission: George Marshall's Unfinished War, 1945-1947 Daniel Kurtz-Phelan, 2018-04-10 An Economist Best Book of 2018 New York Times Book Review Editor's Pick Gripping and splendid An enormous contribution to our understanding of Marshall Washington Post At the end of World War II General George Marshall took on what he thought was a final mission this time not to win a war but to stop one In China conflict between Communists and Nationalists threatened to suck in the United States and escalate into revolution Marshall's charge was to cross the Pacific broker a peace and prevent a

Communist takeover all while staving off World War III At first the results seemed miraculous But as they started to come apart Marshall was faced with a wrenching choice one that would alter the course of the Cold War define the US China relationship and spark one of the darkest ever turns in American political life The China Mission offers a gripping close up view of the central figures of the time from Marshall Mao and Chiang Kai shek to Eisenhower Truman and MacArthur as they stood face to face and struggled to make history with consequences and lessons that echo today Marxism in Asia (RLE Marxism) Colin Mackerras,Nick Knight,2015-04-17 Marxism is a theory which originated in the context of nineteenth century industrialised Europe Despite its European origins Marxism has actually found greatest significance as a doctrine for change in the context of the underdeveloped peasant societies of Asia This paradox has only been resolved through adaptation of Marxism to suit the specific features of particular Asian societies There has consequently been a differentiation of Marxism along national lines In this book first published in 1985 the theoretical and practical implications for this national differentiation of a universal European theory are explored followed by a more detailed analysis of the manner in which Marxism has developed during different historical periods in particular Asian contexts
