A Map to the End of Time Ronald J. Manheimer, 1999 Manheimer relates the lessons he learned while teaching philosophy to a diverse group of retired people Aging and the Art of Living Jan Baars, 2012-08-20 In this deeply considered meditation on aging in Western culture Jan Baars argues that in today's world living longer does not necessarily mean living better He contends that there has been an overall loss of respect for aging to the point that understanding and dealing with aging people has become a process focused on the decline of potential and the advance of disease rather than on the accumulation of wisdom and the creation of new skills To make his case Baars compares and contrasts the works of such modern era thinkers as Foucault Heidegger and Husserl with the thought of Plato Aristotle Sophocles Cicero and other Ancient and Stoic philosophers He shows how people in the classical period less able to control health hazards had a far better sense of the provisional nature of living which led to a philosophical and religious emphasis on cultivating the art of living and the idea of wisdom This is not to say that modern society's assessments of aging are insignificant but they do need to balance an emphasis on the measuring of age with the concept of living in time Gerontologists philosophers and students will find Baars discussion to be a powerful perceptive conversation starter W Andrew Achenbaum author of Older Americans Vital Communities decline from youth aging people were happier more courageous and more interested in being true to their inner selves than were young people Life Gets Better examines through first person stories as well as Lustbader s own observations how a lifetime of lessons learned can yield one of the most personally and emotionally fruitful periods of anyone s life As an eighty six year old who contributed her story to the book noted For me being old is the reward for outlasting all the big and little problems that happen to all of us along life s pathway The collected stories in Life Gets Better provide a hopeful corrective to the fear of aging aggressively instilled in us by the media Don t dread the future The best years of our lives just may be ahead
