John Donne, George Herbert and Andrew Marvell

John Donne (1572-1631) – Holy Sonnet X

Death, be not proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so;
For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow Die not, poor Death, nor yet canst thou kill me.
From rest and sleep, which but thy pictures be,
Much pleasure: then from thee much more must flow,
And soonest our best men with thee do go,
Rest of their bones, and soul's delivery.
Thou art slave to fate, chance, kings, and desperate men,
And dost with poison, war, and sickness dwell,
And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well
And better than thy stroke; why swell'st thou then?
One short sleep past, we wake eternally
And death shall be no more; Death, thou shalt die.

A Valediction: Forbidding Mourning

As virtuous men pass mildly away,
And whisper to their souls to go,
Whilst some of their sad friends do say
The breath goes now, and some say, No:

Our two souls therefore, which are one,
Though I must go, endure not yet
A breach, but an expansion,
Like gold to airy thinness beat.

orientations So naturally Britain has always loomed larger in Danish life and politics than the other way round In many areas however relations have been close The book covers contacts relating to trade security policies and social and political theory but also touch on mutual influences within the areas of literature music design etc Most treatments of Danish political and cultural relations with the outside world in this period concentrate on Germany for the period up to 1945 and on the Soviet Union and the USA in the post war world In the same way works on British contemporary history rarely devote much space to relations with the Nordic countries The aim therefore of this book is to provide a supplement and perhaps corrective to the existing literature on the international positions of Britain and Denmark in the modern world     The Metaphysical Poets
