Making Black Los Angeles Marne L. Campbell, 2016-09-27 Black Los Angeles started small The first census of the newly formed Los Angeles County in 1850 recorded only twelve Americans of African descent alongside a population of more than 3 500 Anglo Americans Over the following seventy years however the African American founding families of Los Angeles forged a vibrant community within the increasingly segregated and stratified city In this book historian Marne L Campbell examines the intersections of race class and gender to produce a social history of community formation and cultural expression in Los Angeles Expanding on the traditional narrative of middle class uplift Campbell demonstrates that the black working class largely through the efforts of women fought to secure their own economic and social freedom by forging communal bonds with black elites and other communities of color This women led black working class agency and cross racial community building Campbell argues was markedly more successful in Los Angeles than in any other region in the country Drawing from an extensive database of all African American households between 1850 and 1910 Campbell vividly tells the story of how middle class African Americans were able to live work and establish a community of their own in the growing city of Los Angeles

A City for Children Marta Gutman,2014-09-19 American cities are constantly being built and rebuilt resulting in ever changing skylines and neighborhoods While the dynamic urban landscapes of New York Boston and Chicago have been widely studied there is much to be gleaned from west coast cities especially in California where the migration boom at the end of the nineteenth century permanently changed the urban fabric of these newly diverse plural metropolises In A City for Children Marta Gutman focuses on the use and adaptive reuse of everyday buildings in Oakland California to make the city a better place for children She introduces us to the women who were determined to mitigate the burdens placed on working class families by an indifferent industrial capitalist economy Often without the financial means to build from scratch women did not tend to conceive of urban land as a blank slate to be wiped clean for development Instead Gutman shows how over and over women turned private houses in Oakland into orphanages kindergartens settlement houses and day care centers and in the process built the charitable landscape a network of places that was critical for the betterment of children families and public life The industrial landscape of Oakland riddled with the effects of social inequalities and racial prejudices is not a neutral backdrop in Gutman s story but an active player Spanning one hundred years of history A City for Children provides a compelling model for building urban institutions
