copied anonymously in a single late fifteenth century manuscript although their style and range of reference place them squarely in the early twelfth century Can this collection of correspondence be the previously lost love letters of Abelard and Heloise And even if not what does it tell us about the lived experience of love in the twelfth century Barbara Newman contends that these teacher student exchanges bear witness to a culture that linked Latin pedagogy with the practice of ennobling love and the cult of friendship during a relatively brief period when women played an active part in that world Newman presents a new translation of these extraordinary letters along with a full commentary and two extended essays that parse their literary and intellectual contexts and chart the course of the doomed affair Included too are two other sets of twelfth century love epistles the Tegernsee Letters and selections from the Regensburg Songs Taken together they constitute a stunning contribution to the study of the history of emotions by one of our most prominent medievalists Analytical Review ,1788 Containing scientific abstracts of important and interesting works published in English a general account of such as are of less consequence with short characters notices or reviews of valuable foreign books criticisms on new pieces of music and works of art and the literary intelligence of Europe etc Music Lovers' Phonograph Monthly Review ,1926
