Made in Hong Kong Peter E. Hamilton, 2021-01-05 Between 1949 and 1997 Hong Kong transformed from a struggling British colonial outpost into a global financial capital Made in Hong Kong delivers a new narrative of this metamorphosis revealing Hong Kong both as a critical engine in the expansion and remaking of postwar global capitalism and as the linchpin of Sino-U.S. trade since the 1970s Peter E. Hamilton explores the role of an overlooked transnational Chinese elite who fled to Hong Kong amid war and revolution Despite losing material possessions these industrialists, bankers, academics and other professionals retained crucial connections to the United States They used these relationships to enmesh themselves and Hong Kong with the U.S. through commercial ties and higher education By the 1960s Hong Kong had become a manufacturing powerhouse supplying American consumers and by the 1970s it was the world's largest sender of foreign students to American colleges and universities Hong Kong's reorientation toward U.S. international leadership enabled its transplanted Chinese elites to benefit from expanding American influence in Asia and positioned them to act as shepherds to China's reengagement with global capitalism After China's reforms accelerated under Deng Xiaoping Hong Kong became a crucial node for China's export-driven development connecting Chinese labor with the U.S. market Analyzing untapped archival sources from around the world this book demonstrates why we cannot understand postwar globalization, China's economic rise or today's Sino-U.S. trade relationship without centering Hong Kong

Transnational Lives in Global Cities Caroline Plüss, 2018-12-21 This book investigates the transnational experiences of Chinese Singaporeans who lived in one of four global cities: Hong Kong, London, New York, or Singapore. Plüss argues that these middle class, well educated and often highly skilled migrants mostly experienced a sense of disembeddedness and not cosmopolitanism or hybridity in their transnational lives. The author's multi-sited study intersects the Chinese Singaporeans' highly varied perceptions of these global cities and their biographies to show that these migrants, who often were repeat migrants, foremost experienced ruptures and disjuncture in their education, work, family and/or friendships, lifestyle contexts. Transnational disembeddedness is explained in terms of the Chinese Singaporeans' access to resources and their views of self, others, places and societies. Plüss recommends that research on these migrants should more fully account for the complexities of transnational processes and contributes with such a knowledge to the scholarship on transnationalism, migration, race and ethnicity and migrant non integration.
