Myths and Fictions the third in a series of books on comparative philosophy and religion is a collection of original essays none previously published on the theory and the actuality of myths and fictions in the different cultures of the world Through all the essays there runs the question of the relation of literal truth to truth conceived in other ways or dimensions Taken as a whole the book makes a serious attempt to get beyond the confines of any single culture and enter into the mythical imagination of the ancient Hindus Chinese Hebrews and Christians and by this act of imagination to escape in Italo Calvino's words the limited perspective of the individual ego not only to enter into selves like our own but to give speech to that which has no language

Philosophy, Religious Studies, and Myth Robert A. Segal, 2014-07-16 Much of the theorizing about myth in philosophy and religious studies grows out of efforts to understand the classics and the Bible In the case of the classics the presence of myth has been taken for granted and conclusions reached about Greek and Roman mythology have spurred generalizations about myth In the case of the Bible however the existence of myth has been contested In fact Judaism and Christianity are regularly praised for their nonmythic outlook Conclusions reached about the presence or absence of myth in either the Hebrew Bible or the New Testament have led to generalizations about myth per se Many of the essays in this volume apply theories of myth to classical biblical and ancient Near Eastern cases but in so doing they draw conclusions about the nature of myth itself Those essays that criticize past applications make generalizations as well By no means has all theorizing about myth from philosophy and religious studies centered on the ancient world and this volume contains selections from theories in both disciplines that stem from reflections on the nature of science language knowledge and reality
