Politics of the 'Other' in India and China Lion Koenig, Bidisha Chaudhuri, 2016-02-22 The social sciences have been heavily influenced by modernization theory focusing on issues of economic growth political development and social change in order to develop a predictive model of linear progress for developing countries following a Western prototype Under this hegemonic paradigm of development the world tends to get divided into simplistic binary oppositions between the West and the rest us and them and self and other Proposing to shift the discussion on what constitutes the Other as opposed to the Self from philosophy and cultural studies to the social sciences this book explores how the structural asymmetries existing between Western discourses and the realities of the non Western world manifest themselves in the ideas institutions and socio political practices of India and China and in how far they shape the social scientist s understanding of their discipline in general It provides a counter narrative by revealing the relativity of geographies and by showing that the conventional presentation of core elements of the Asian socio political set up as aberrations from the Western models fails to acknowledge their inherent strategic character of adapting Western concepts to meet local requirements Drawing on multiple disciplines concepts and contexts in India and China the book makes a valuable contribution to the theory and practice of politics as well as to International and Asian Studies

Maoism have extended far beyond China Maoism was a crucial motor of the Cold War it shaped the course of the Vietnam War and the international youth rebellions that conflict triggered and brought to power the murderous Khmer Rouge in Cambodia it aided and sometimes handed victory to anti colonial resistance movements in Africa it inspired terrorism in Germany and Italy and wars and insurgencies in Peru India and Nepal some of which are still with us today more than forty years after the death of Mao In this new history Julia Lovell re evaluates Maoism as both a Chinese and an international force linking its evolution in China with its global legacy It is a story that takes us from the tea plantations of north India to the sierras of the Andes from Paris s fifth arrondissement to the fields of Tanzania from the rice paddies of Cambodia to the terraces of Brixton Starting with the birth of Mao s revolution in northwest China in the 1930s and concluding with its violent afterlives in South Asia and resurgence in the People s Republic today this is a landmark history of global Maoism

This extensively researched and elegantly written study offers a fine grained analysis of the origins of the Chinese Communist Revolution in the countryside Building on decades of research in newly available sources and multiple trips to Jiangxi Stephen Averill provides a definitive local perspective on the rise of a revolution that reshaped China and the world A rich work of social history it goes beyond recently popular organizational approaches to explore the ways in which the party and social networks interpenetrated and interacted in the early stages of revolutionary base building The Jinggangshan highlands provided the base for Mao Zedong s first efforts at rural revolution Chinese histories and most Western accounts have focused on the heroic exploits of Mao and his Communist Party comrades battling the natural elements hostile military forces and skeptical authorities in the urban based Communist Central Committee This long awaited work penetrates the hagiographic haze of Mao centered analysis to provide a close narrative and rich social history of the Jinggangshan base The author explores the historical patterns of local strongman rule clientelist politics lineage conflict and ethnic struggle within which the party competed for power Through this multifaceted lens the revolutionary experience in Jinggangshan is equally dramatic but considerably more sobering than the conventional story Among Western studies of the Chinese revolution this work stands out as the definitive account of the critical moment in the 1920s when the physical and ideological center of the Communist movement shifted from the cities to the countryside This was a process of elite mediated political osmosis and adaptive compromises with local traditions The party was not simply an outside force manipulating social tensions for its own political ends There was instead an intricate interweaving of local networks and social cleavages in the highlands with the political structures and policy divisions of t
