Language, Society and the State in a Changing World Stanley D. Brunn,Roland Kehrein,2023-04-08 This book addresses the changing contemporary language worlds in three major contexts It first discusses how the language landscape maps of cities are changing as a result of increased migration globalization and global media These features are evident in place names and place name changes as well as the densities and frequencies of language spoken and used in texts The second section discusses how the state itself is responding to both indigenous and heritage groups desiring to be included and represented in the state s political landscapes and also expressions of art and culture In the third section the authors address a number of cutting edge theses that are emerging in the linguistic geography and political words These include the importance of gender anthropogenetic discourse the preservation of endangered languages and challenges to a state s official language policy Through including authors from nine different countries who are writing about issues in twelve countries and their overlapping interests in language mapping language usage and policy and visual representations this book provides inspiring research into future topics at local national regional and international scales

The World in Brooklyn Judith DeSena, Timothy Shortell, 2012-03-22 The World in Brooklyn Gentrification Immigration and Ethnic Politics in a Global City is a collection of scholarly papers which analyze demographic social political and economic trends that are occurring in Brooklyn Brooklyn as the context reflects global forces while also contributing to them The idea for this volume developed as the editors discovered a group of scholars from different disciplines and various universities studying Brooklyn Brooklyn has always been legendary and has more recently regained its stature as a much sought after place to live work and have fun Popular folklore has it that most U S residents trace their family origins to Brooklyn It is presently referred to as one of the hippest places in New York Thus this book is a collection of demographic ethnographic and comparative studies which focus on urban dynamics in Brooklyn The chapters investigate issues of social class urban development immigration race ethnicity and politics within the context of Brooklyn As a whole this book considers both theoretical and practical urban issues In most cases the scholarly perspective is on everyday life With this in mind there are also social justice concerns Issues of social segregation and attendant homogenization are brought to light Moreover social class and race advantages or disadvantages as part of urban processes are underscored through critiques of local policy decisions throughout the chapters A common thread is the assertion by contributors that planning the future of Brooklyn needs to include multi ethnic racial and economic groups those very residents who make up Brooklyn

Engineering Education in the Rapidly Changing World Aldert Kamp, 2023-06-21 The first edition inspired many conversations about The Future Engineer at my home university and many partner universities and institutes abroad The Free Spirits Think Tank of the 4TU Centre of Engineering Education in the Netherlands which investigates the rise of new engineering profiles in the coming 10 to 15 years and develops matching scenarios for campus education in 2030 has taken my vision as a source of inspiration The numerous meetings and workshops I attended between engineering academics industries and engineering consultancies in the Netherlands and abroad and the conferences and panels of the global CDIO Initiative and the World Engineering Education Forum WEEF in Florence 2015 all discussed the subject of the engineer and industry of the future They addressed the impact of the changing global economy the fast pace of change the limited shelf life of specialist knowledge the university s role in innovation the need for an interdisciplinary mind set the global interconnectedness the rise of machine intelligence and the use of open standards These are all aspects that shape the rapidly changing world in which we live and in which we educate tomorrow s engineers who might be a different breed than the ones we have been educating over the past 50 years These factors set the scene for the why and what of our future

Water in a Changing World World Water Assessment Programme (United Nations),2009 The United Nations World Water Development Report published every three years is a comprehensive review providing an authoritative picture of the state of the world s freshwater resources It offers best practices as well as in depth theoretical analyses to help stimulate ideas and actions for better stewardship in the water sector It is the only report of its kind resulting from the collaboration and contributions of the 26 UN agencies commissions program funds secretariats and conventions that have a significant role in addressing global water concerns The news media are full of talk of crises in climate change energy and food and troubled financial markets These crises are linked to each other and to water resources management Unresolved they may lead to increasing political insecurity and conflict Water is required to meet our fundamental needs and rising living standards and to sustain our planets fragile ecosystems Pressures on the resource come from a growing and mobile population social and cultural change economic development and technological change Adding complexity and risk is climate change with impacts on the resource as well as on the sources of pressure on water The challenges though substantial are not insurmountable The Report shows how some countries have responded Progress in providing drinking water is heartening with the Millennium Development Goal target on track in most regions But other areas remain unaddressed and after decades of inaction the problems in water systems are enormous and will worsen if left unattended Leaders in the water sector can inform decisions outside their domain and manage water resources to achieve agreed socioeconomic objectives and environmental integrity Leaders in government the private sector and civil society determine these objectives and allocate human and financial resources to meet them Recognizing this responsibility they must act now Two volume set 336 96 pages case studies Includes CD ROM Published jointly with UNESCO Publishing

Mapping and the Citizen Sensor Giles Foody,Linda See,Steffen Fritz,Peter Mooney,Ana-Maria Olteanu-Raimond,Cidália Costa Fonte,Vyron Antoniou,2017-09-11 Maps are a fundamental resource in a diverse array of applications ranging from everyday activities such as route planning through the legal demarcation of space to scientific studies such as those seeking to understand biodiversity and inform the design of nature reserves for species conservation For a map to have value it should provide an accurate and timely representation of the phenomenon depicted and this can be a challenge in a dynamic world Fortunately mapping activities have benefitted greatly from recent advances in geoinformation technologies Satellite remote sensing for example now offers unparalleled data acquisition and authoritative mapping agencies have developed systems for the routine production of maps in accordance with strict standards Until recently much mapping activity was in the exclusive realm of authoritative agencies but technological development has also allowed the rise of the amateur mapping community The proliferation of inexpensive and highly mobile and location aware devices together with Web 2 0 technology have fostered the emergence of the citizen as a source of data Mapping presently benefits from vast amounts of spatial data as well as people able to provide observations of geographic phenomena which can inform map production revision and evaluation The great potential of these developments is however often limited by concerns The latter span issues from the nature of the citizens through the way data are collected and shared to the quality and trustworthiness of the data This book reports on some of the key issues connected with the use of citizen sensors in mapping It arises from a European Co operation in Science and Technology COST Action which explored issues linked to topics ranging from citizen motivation data acquisition data quality and the use of citizen derived data in the production of maps that rival and sometimes surpass maps arising from authoritative agencies
